CAR BURNED; WOMAN DEAD

Mrs. Berg, Wife of Southern Railway Magnate, Dies in a Wreck.

PRESIDENT BERG BADLY INJURED

Were En Route to Winnipeg When Train Was Ditched and Burned.

Vergas, Minn., June 3.—Mrs. L. S. Berg, wife of the president of the New Orleans, Mobile & Chicago railroad, was killed, and Mr. Berg was seriously injured in the wreck of a Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie train No. 109, northbound for Thief River Falls at 11 o'clock last night. A few other passengers sustained slight injuries. The wreck was caused by a washout in a cut a mile south of Vergas, Minn. Mr. and Mrs. Berg were en route to Winnipeg in their private car, which was destroyed. Mrs. Berg's body is still at the depot at Vergas. Mr. Berg, who had not lost consciousness, was taken to Heming in a relief train for treatment at a hospital. It is thought he will recover.

Many passengers had narrow escapes. One man, a traveling salesman, jumped through a window and cut his hands. Other minor injuries were reported.

Eight of the eleven cars in the train left the track, following the engine, and three cars burned completely, including the Berg private coach.

Senor Cip Castro Believed to Be in Cuban Capital.

Havana, June 3.—Cipriano Castro, the former president of Venezuela, could not be found today despite a thorough search by customs officials among the passengers of the steamer Legazpi, which arrived last night from Las Palmas, Canary Islands. It had been reported that Castro was attempting to return to Venezuela, from which country he is an exile.

According to the officers of the ship a passenger who probably was the ex-president under an assumed name, boarded the Legazpi at Cadiz April 14, but left the ship on arrival at Las Palmas three days later.

Degree of Honor No. 2 will have a pedro party in the Aldine hall next Tuesday afternoon.

MORE LIGHT IS WANTED

House Committee Will Go Deeper Into Tennessee Coal & Iron.

NEW WITNESSES TO BE SUMMONED

Discrepancies Between Mr. Gates and Judge Gary to Be Gone Into.

Washington, June 3.—Because of what are said to be the marked discrepancies in the accounts of the absorption of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company by the United States steel corporation in the panicky days of 1907, as given by John W. Gates and Elbert H. Gary, the Stanley "steel trust" committee of the house has determined that further light on that deal must be obtained and that every person who had anything to do with it should be examined.

The committee is again considering the necessity of summoning former President Roosevelt and former Secretary of State Elihu Root for verification of the conferences with Messrs. Gary and Frick on the Tennessee transaction.

Will Be Pushed Rapidly.

Chairman Stanley said today that the steel inquiry would be pushed forward as rapidly as possible, although no further hearings will be held until next Wednesday, when Mr. Gary will continue his recital of organization and methods of operation. John Lambert, of the Republic Iron and Steel company, also will be a witness on that day.

The committee also is considering the advisability of holding sessions in New York, where there are many witnesses and much material of the steel corporation to which Mr. Gary frankly told the committee it could have access. One of the men summoned to testify said today that he had been informed that he might not have to return to Washington but could hold himself in readiness to testify before the committee in New York.

Will Summon More Witnesses.

Today the committee made thorough investigation of the testimony given yesterday by Mr. Gary and planned to summon many more witnesses suggested by the disclosures of the steel magnate. Lewis Cass Ledyard, the attorney for Oliver Paine, of the Tennessee Coal & Iron company, who Mr. Gary declared conducted the negotiations on behalf of Grant B. Schley for the sale of the Tennessee company, will be asked to appear in the near future. An agreement was reached by the committee with R. V. Lindabury, counsel for the steel corporation, whereby at least two of the steel company witnesses, who have been summoned, will appear each day of the hearing until all have testified. Norman B. Ream, W. B. Dickson, Percival Roberts and James Gayley, were excused yesterday, subject to call.

MOROCCO IS BARRED.

Envoy to Coronation Will Not Be Received.

London, June 3.—The British government's invitation to Morocco to send a special ambassador to the coronation of King George has been withdrawn and the foreign office has notified El Mokri, who has been designated to represent Sultan Mulai Hafid, that he will not be received.

This action on the part of the British government was brought about by the cruelty with which the sultan's troops treated women and children during the recent raid from Fez. The soldiers captured many women and girls in the neighboring villages and sold them on the streets of Fez.

MADERO IS GIVEN ROYAL RECEPTION

People of Ciudad Porfirio Diaz Turn Out to Pay Him Tribute.

HAIL HIM LIBERATOR

Piedras, Negras, (formerly Ciudad Porfirio Diaz), Mexico, June 3.—Re-entering Mexican territory after a 600-mile journey through the United States, Francisco I. Madero, jr., was welcomed by an immense throng at the international line here today. Crowds from Eagle Pass, Tex., and the old Ciudad Porfirio Diaz swarmed the bridges, and with a chorus of "Viva Madero," "Long live the defender of liberty," and similar cries, hailed the former rebel chief as a national hero.

The party arrived at Eagle Pass today at 8:30 o'clock and were driven in automobiles across the international bridge. At the middle of the bridge Madero was received in the embrace of Senor V. Carranza, the new governor of Coahuila, who escorted him into Mexico through a gateway of flowers, the arch of which bore the inscription, "Piedras Negras," signifying the passing of the name Ciudad Porfirio Diaz from this town and the dawn of a new era in Mexico.

Madero made a brief address of thanks for the demonstration.

LONGEST ROUTE MAY PROVE BEST

Frank B. Taylor Submits New Data on Canal Proposition.

WEST OF FORT WAYNE

That the route by way of Rochester for the continuation of the proposed lake-to-lake canal westward from Fort Wayne, while in point of distance forty miles longer than the shortest line, may prove after all to be the most desirable is the substance of conclusions by Frank B. Taylor, of this city, and submitted in a report to Col. Zinn, of the army engineering corps at Chicago.

Col. Zinn is in charge of the preliminary investigation of the line from Fort Wayne to Lake Michigan as Col. Millis is in direction of the investigation between Fort Wayne and Toledo. Mr. Taylor concludes from his examination of the topographic conditions that the route by way of Rochester may prove most desirable in a number of ways. First, it offers more positive assurance of plentiful water supply; second, fewer locks will be necessary, and third, construction will be less expensive because there are fewer deep

TO PURCHASE REPAIR PLANT

Board of Works Advertises for Bids on Asphalt Equipment.

BAD STREETS TO BE PUT IN CONDITION

Administration Will Save Time and Depend on the Council.

At a meeting this morning the board of public works prepared advertisements for bids on a street repair plant and they will be inserted in the newspapers at once and the matter pushed rapidly so that the city can take care of its own repair work next spring.

The bids and the specifications will include both a stationary and a portable plant and the one most suited to local conditions will be put in. A five-ton roller will be purchased at the same time.

Three street repair gangs are working on the brick pavements now, one from the gas company's office, another from the waterworks department and a third is following the others taking up general repairs not necessitated by cutting into the streets to lay pipe.

The Barber Asphalt company is ready to begin repairs, but its new machinery has not been received and until this is here and essembled it will be impossible to do any of the work on which its guarantees still hold.

The streets are to be put in condition and that there shall be no needless delay the board will at once take steps to procure the necessary equipment and rely on the city council to make the necessary appropriation. There is practically no question that the council will promptly provide the means to make the purchase.

May Buy Portable Plant.

It is probable that a portable plant capable of furnishing from 300 to 500 square yards of asphalt per day will be purchased. It is believed that greater convenience and economy can be had by using a portable plant than by establishing a stationary plant and being obliged to haul the "hot stuff" in many cases long distances. This will be determined when the bids are in.

Just as soon as a plant can be procured the work of repair will be inaugurated by the board and kept up as long as the season favors. There is much to do and a repair plant will have no idle days for a long while.

Many streets are in a badly damaged condition. Great holes in the asphalt have exposed the foundation and more than repair of the sheeting will be necessary.

Mayor Grice and his board have inspected conditions and were not long in deciding that no delay ought to be made in taking steps to furnish the city with repair equipment.

Considering Meter Bids.

Members of the board were in session most of the day considering bids submitted some time ago and while no award had been made late this afternoon the bid of the Worthington Pump and Meter company was the most attractive and this concern will likely get the contract.

Prices quoted include all sizes of meters that are to be used in the city and the prices are more satisfactory than they are in buying in small quantities.

TAFT IN WORD TO FORT WAYNE

President Greets Crowd at the Pennsylvania Station.

IN STRONG STAND FOR RECIPROCITY

Says Profit Cannot Always Be on One Side of Deal Only.

President Taft spoke a few words of greeting to the crowd which surrounded the platform of his special car when his train reached Fort Wayne this morning, en route to Chicago where the president is to deliver an address on reciprocity. It was the first instance in which the president has spoken during the present trip, and in acknowledging the coming of the Fort Wayne crowd Mr. Taft broke over his determination to remain quietly in his car and make no addresses on his way to Chicago.

In his few remarks in Fort Wayne the president reiterated strongly his well-known stand in favor of reciprocal trade relations, especially wth Canada. "The idea that one can have all the profit continually on his side of a deal is an exploded theory," said the president.

His Train Was Late.

Mr. Taft was traveling in the special Pullman car "Ideal," attached to the second section of westbound Pennsylvania train No. 23. It was expected in Fort Wayne at 10:30 o'clock, but a delay in the yards made it half an hour later before the train steamed into the station. Engineer Ira Burger was in the cab of the engine which drew the presidential train from Crestline to Fort Wayne, and Engineer W. K. Wilder continued the run to Chicago. The conductor was Ed Lipsett. Superintendent W. M. Wardrop, who had gone to Pittsburg, made the trip with the president to Fort Wayne.

News that the president was coming had become generally circulated and a crowd of perhaps three hundred people was on the station platform hoping to get a glimpse of the president. Rain which had been coming in showers during the morning ceased shortly before the train reached the city. The presidential car was the last on the train, and standing upon the gated rear platform of the car was an attache of the presidential party who resented the attempts of a number of men who attempted to climb upon the car to catch a glimpse of Mr. Taft.

President All Smiles.

A moment later Mr. Taft, bareheaded and smiling, stepped out of the car door and upon the rear platform, and he was greeted by handclapping while the remainder of the crowd surged back to see him. The president was attired in a business suit of dark grey and he looked the picture of health—quite a different personality than when during the strenuous campaign tour, tired and worn and husky-voiced, he last stopped in Fort Wayne to make a political address from a stand erected at Holman and Clinton streets, but a square distant from the train which he hurriedly left and to which he as hurriedly returned in an automobile at the close of his remarks.

Today Mr. Taft appeared fresh and vigorous as though he were finding the presidential job very much to his liking. There were no lines in his face save those cast there by the smiles that flashed over his countenance as he surveyed the gathering and expressed his pleasure at this courtesy of Fort Wayne people.

His Remarks Were Brief.

"Good morning, friends," was the presidential salutation as he reached the platform of his car and the clapping of hands assured him of a welcome. "I am glad to see you. I am on my way to Chicago to make a speech on reciprocity, and I am so full of that subject that I cannot talk to you on any other at this time." A voice in the audience cried, "We'll back you up in that!" and the smile on the president's face grew still broader.

"I regard reciprocity as one of the great and necessary steps in the development of business on both sides of the line," continued Mr. Taft. "We cannot have good business relations unless each party makes something out of the trade. The belief that the profit can all be on one side of the deal is an exploded theory. We must treat our neighbors fairly in commercialism as well as in other relations. I want you to think deeply upon this question of reciprocity.

Did Not Expect to Speak.

"I did not expect to speak on this trip, but since you have been kind enough to come to see me, I could not do less than in this manner acknowledge your courtesy in coming and say to you all that I thank you. And now, good-bye." Again and again Mr. Taft waved his hand at the crowd as he retreated into his car.

The presidential train remained at the station only long enough to permit the change of engines before it steamed away to Chicago.

TWO THOUSAND YOUNG BOYS AND GIRLS IN GREAT MASS DRILL AT DRIVING PARK PUBLIC SCHOOL FIELD DAY EXHIBITION.

THIRD FIELD DAY PROVES SUCCESS

Exercises Given Without a Hitch—Credit Due Instructors.

BIG CROWD PRESENT

At a fair estimate over 7,500 people took part in and witnessed the third annual field day held under the auspices of the public schools of this city. The committee in charge of the affair had been making a supreme effort to make a success of the undertaking, and from the size of the crowd and the enthusiasm shown the event surely was a success.

At 1 o'clock the open Driving park cars began leaving the city loaded with youngsters. Each car carried scholars from a certain school and for two hours the tracks were heavy with the youthful traffic. At 2 o'clock the grandstand and bleachers were filled with spectators and the crowds began breaking into the middle of the field. Eight policemen under Officer Brennan were kept busy forcing the mob back to the outside of the track, but considering the immense number of people handled the order was very good.

All of the youngsters were in their element. A large majority of the little girls were dressed in middy blouses and those of the boys who took part in the events were rigged up in home-made athletic suits. All contestants wore their school letters.

Band Concert Precedes Events.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the Packard band started a popular concert in the stand on the inside of the track, and a few minutes later the program of the day started. The inside of the driving course was given over to the High school youths during the first part of the entertainment and the broad jump, shot put, high jump, discus throw and pole vault were the events carried out. While the High school athletes were vieing for honors in the field the younger contestants were starting in some very exciting races on the course. The inter-class races were first on the program. The boys of the different grades ran 75 yards and the little girls were given but two-thirds that distance.

The first drill of the entertainment took place in the center of the field. The grounds had been neatly marked off and nearly 900 pupils of the third and fourth grades went through exercises to the time of the music played by the band. The little children made a very pleasing sight on the field and much credit is due to the teachers who taught them the drills. When the big drill was over the High school lads ran a half mile race and then the track was given over to the boys' and girls' shuttle races. Dumb-bells and Indian club drills were next in order.

Great Mass Drills.

Without doubt the most entertaining part of the field day exercises was the great mass drill in which over two thousand scholars took part. The musicians furnished a lively air and the drill was carried out in clock-work order. Prof. Henry Meyer, of the city schools, led the pupils from the band stand and it could be easily seen that the instructor had spent much time on the drill.

The exercises lasted until after five o'clock and on account of the great crowd on the field and the inadequate one track car service many of the little children did not reach the city until seven o'clock. Taking everything into consideration, the events of yesterday were better managed and the crowd was larger than in either of the two previous field days. Much credit is due Prof. Meyer and Miss Snively, who were at the head of the entertainment, and also to the teachers and judges who contributed their efforts to make the day a success.

AT THE FAIRY.

"The State Line," a Strange Tale of the West.

A virile tale of the free and untrammeled west, where daring deeds abound and the bonds of city civilization are not felt, is "The State Line," produced today at the Fairy theater.

Not only is it charming from the standpoint of unconventionality, but the plot is unique in many ways, with strong characterization and faithful motive. Most of the heroes are flannel-shirted, belted, corduroyed, booted and stirruped. Real, manly types of bold, brave, open-hearted, generous frontiersmen.

Among all of them none was so brave and generous as Harry Blake. Big and bronzed and powerful, there wasn't a weak inch in his six feet two of height. No friend ever went hungry—or thirsty either—while Harry Blake had a dollar in his pocket. No man ever ventured to speak disparagingly of a woman or even to hint that he didn't like the shape of Harry's hat, for Harry Blake carried two big guns in his holsters and he was remarkably quick at drawing them.

COLONIAL.

The Fourth of July, which year after year takes its terrible toll of dead and injured, is fast approaching, and the cry for a sane Fourth is already heard from one end of the country to another. The need for a sane Fourth cannot be better illustrated than by the story of what happened in a little suburban village in New York.

The mayor of the city, a widower, brought to see the need of a sane Fourth by a little widow, with whom he is in love, joins with her in the movement, but influenced by politicians, who threaten defeat at the next election if the sale of fireworks is stopped, he backs down in his stand. The result is that at the close of the day the little widow is bending over her small son, who is in danger of losing his eyesight from the explosion of a cannon cracker, and a week later the mayor's little daughter is taken with lockjaw from an injury to her finger by a firecracker exploding. Grief-stricken the mayor watches the progress of the two children with anxious eyes, and as they slowly recover he pronounces that there will be a sane Fourth the next year. The sane Fourth is held and the children are entertained with games and sports, and the day has a much happier ending than the year before, for the mayor's love for the little widow is rewarded. This is the story told by the film, "A Same Fourth of July," at the Colonial today.

SALOON MEN ASK A FEW TRANSFERS

Big Grist of Applicants to Be in Court on License Day.

NEWS OF THE COURTS

A few permits to transfer saloon licenses have been filed in the commissioners' court to be heard Monday and the board will have a big grist of applications to deal with. One interesting case is that of C. O. Horstmann, who has been conducting a saloon at the Rich hotel.

He is under indictment by the grand jury for stealing chickens in connection with his brother and he has asked to have his permit transferred to Thomas O'Dowd, proprietor of the hotel. Just what effect the section of the liquor law relative to men guilty of felonies will have in this matter is problematical. Transfers asked for are as follows:

John F. Ladig to 210 East Columbia street; John H. Peters to Lichtsinn & Peters; Paul Burman to Edward Pettit; C. O. Horstmann to Thomas J. O'Dowd; Frank Young to John O. Judy; Richard E. Pomper to Paul Koehler; Patrick O'Niel to Jacob Erlenbach; George Bado to Orville Williams; Alexander E. Bowin to from 210 East Columbia street to 134 West Main street; Wm. H. Spreen to Joseph J. Koorsen.

The list of licenses expiring Monday is as follows:

William Kassens, 701 East Jefferson; Julius Fabian, 1153 Lafayette; George Goeglein, St. Joe township; Fred H. Meyer, 620 Harrison; Joseph A. Faulkner, Shirley City; Joseph Schnee, 1831 Calhoun street; Jacob Rohrer, 202 West Superior; Joseph Hanna, 111 West Jefferson; J. F. Gregory, 613 Harrison street; William Miller, 2213 Spy Run avenue; John Helmcamp, 622 Harrison; Henry Flechenstein, 110 West Main; Edward V. Kelly, 1702 Hoagland avenue; Frank H. Johns, New Haven; Julian Farra, St. Joe township; J. W. H. Koehler, 2528 South Calhoun street; Wm. H. Spreen, 2035 Gay street; Henry Hockemeyer, 1030 Calhoun street; John H. Auth, 1022 Calhoun street; James H. Redding, Arcola; Russell George, 219 East Main; John Baral, 127 East Main; Michael Weidner, 1801 Hanna street; Elmer E. Williams, Huntertown; John Linker, 131 East Main; X. Hammerlee, 1155 West Main; George D. Hiser, Goshen road; Edward White, White Fruit House; Emil W. Messman, Woodburn.

Nothing From Monroe.

There have been no applications filed for licenses to operate in Monroe township, which has been dry several years by remonstrance. A new remonstrance has been filed with the county auditor which bears 308 names and the brewery agents claim they have 84 withdrawals, placing the number remaining at 224, just exactly what is needed to keep out the saloons.

Pleasant township has also renewed its remonstrance which expired today and there are 197 names with no withdrawals.

WILLIAM BAXTER IS FOUND DEAD

A Pennsylvania Engineer, Some Time Ill, Dies Unexpectedly.

THE OTHER DEATHS

William E. Baxter, aged 30 years, a Pennsylvania engineer, was found dead in bed at 1720 South Calhoun street, where he roomed, at 11:30 o'clock this morning. Baxter was an extra engineer on the road until three months ago, when he was reduced to fireman during the slack season. He had been ailing and under the doctor's care for the past ten days, though not confined to his bed. He made his last trip on May 17.

Baxter was found dead in his bed by his landlady, who went to the room to call him. She had been in the room about 6 o'clock in the morning to close the windows during the rain, and he appeared to be all right at that time. Another roomer by the name of E. P. Noolan was also in the room and conversed with Baxter about 4 o'clock in the morning. Deputy Coroner Harrod was called, and upon examination stated that he had been dead several hours. The body was removed to the Getz & Cahill morgue, and his relatives in Marlington, W. Va., his former home, notified of his death. Baxter had been in the employ of the Pennsylvania company for the past ten years.

He is survived by the widow, his parents, one brother, Harry, residing at Marion, and two sisters, Mrs. Charles Feist, of Marion, and Mrs. John Frame, of this city.

FIRST FIGHT 50 YEARS AGO TODAY

Fort Wayne Soldiers Recall Initial Clash of War at Philippi.

HALF CENTURY AGO

Four Fort Wayne veterans recall vividly the occasion when, fifty years ago today, they participated in the first battle of the civil war. It was the clash at Philippi, W. Va., and the Fort Wayne command engaged in that battle was Captain Segur's E company of the Ninth Indiana volunteers, the first company to leave Fort Wayne for the front after President Lincoln's call for troops. Of this first company four members are yet living in Fort Wayne. They are Joseph Kickley, Samuel Kelker, Charles Fairfield and Rudolph Reffelt.

"Last night reminded me of it especially," said Mr. Kickley today, "for it was through just such a night of thunder, rain and lightning that we marched fifty years ago to get into the engagement, and we attacked the enemy at 3 o'clock in the morning. It wasn't much of an engagement, judged by later battles, but to us green, untried volunteers it seemed very much like genuine war, and the fact that our forces were victorious in driving the confederates into retreat gave us much encouragement."

From 3,000 to 4,000 men on each side were engaged in the action at Philippi, the Union regiments being the Ninth Indiana, the First West Virginia and the Fourteenth Ohio volunteers. General Tom Morris was the Union commander.

HUGHES ABLE TO TALK.

Young Motorcyclist Does Not Know How Accident Happened.

John Hughes, the young man who was seriously injured in a motorcycle race at the driving park Sunday afternoon, when his machine veered from the track and ran into the fence at the east turn, and who has been lying at St. Joseph's hospital in a critical condition since the accident, has had intervals of consciousness during the past two days, and has been able to answer a few questions of the doctor and nurse. He was asked how he happened to crash into the fence, and stated that he did not know himself how the accident occurred. Hughes' condition at times seems to improve and at other times he seems to grow worse, and it is hard to tell whether he will recover or not.

HAD MONEY IN POCKET.

Said He Had Been Robbed But Money Was Discovered.

When Martin Harrington was arrested for drunkenness he had an awful kick coming on the ground that he had been robbed of $10 at police headquarters, but a search of his clothing brought to light the missing money. In the city court today he drew $5 and costs and his money was not quite enough to keep him out of jail.

August Schneider, Tom Barlow and John Doe, true name not known, were fined $5 and costs each for being drunk. Six vags were ordered out of two and three others held until Monday.

SCORES OF WORKERS ARE NOT SEEN

Big Hotel Staff of the Famous Gentry Shows Seldom Meets the Public—But They Keep the Big Enterprise "Alive."

BABY PONIES WITH GENTRY BROS. SHOWS.

With traveling cities, such as the Gentry Brothers All New Features shows are, there is an army of employes, of whom the public sees nothing. These employes are entrusted with the hotel work that is incumbent upon an institution like the big Gentry shows.

Cooks, waiters and hotel car porters are conspicuous about the show solely because of their absence from view. While the multitudes that attend the world's most classy animal exhibition are marveling at its wonders, this corps of invisible but nevertheless valuable assistants is busy making up the beds in the Pullman train used by Gentry Bros., or they are busy preparing the meals for scores of other employes who come in closer touch with the public.

About the only thing common to the Broadway hotel that cannot be found with Gentry Bros.' all new feature shows is the telephone. This adjunct, however, is unnecessary. Every employe in the big institution knows his place and his duties. Hence conversations during the day are not needed.

With the arrival of Gentry Bros.' all new feature shows in Fort Wayne Wednesday, the hundreds who toil in the cause of amusement will awake to find waiting them a hearty breakfast of the best the market affords. Then the army will journey on its way to the show grounds. A distinctive feature of Gentry Bros.' commissary department is the fact that it buys as largely as possible on local markets.

While here Gentry Bros.' shows will occupy lots at Esmond and Calhoun streets. Admission will be twenty-five and thirty-five cents for this day only.

FREY MAKES AN ADVANCE.

Stalled German Aviator Finally Gets Out of Pisa.

Rome, Italy, June 3.—Frey, the German entry in the Paris-Rome-Turin aviation race, who has been stalled at Pisa, owing to the wrecking of his machine, left that city at 8:15 o'clock this morning for Rome. He flew to Macoarese, eight miles from the capital, where he was forced to land owing to the dense fog. It is understood he will resume his flight at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Vidart succeeded in repairing the wing of his aeroplane, broken by an abrupt landing at Cecina, and he again ascended, flying in the direction of Rome, where he expects to arrive this afternoon.

Frey came by automobile to Rome just before noon and after taking luncheon returned to Macarez. King Victor Emmanual today conferred knighthood on Andre Beaumont, who was the first contestant to reach the Italian capital, the end of the second stage of the 1,300 mile flight and who won a prize of $20,000.

COTTON BROKERS LOSE.

Test Suit to Make Banks Pay Loses Goes Against Them.

New York, June 3.—The cotton brokers have lost their test suit to make the banks pay losses the cotton firms suffered through spurious bills of lading issued by Knight, Vancey & Co., the bankrupt southern cotton brokers. The appellate division here unanimously affirmed a supreme court decision setting aside a verdict for $39,910 in favor of the cotton exchange firm of Springs & Co. against the Hanover National bank and ordering a new trial.

The court holds that banks discounting drafts or presenting them for payment do not "guarantee the genuineness of bills of lading attached to them as collateral security."

Springs & Co. paid a draft for the amount sued for, which was collected by the Hanover National bank for Knight, Yancey & Co., with bills of lading attached subsequently found to be fraudulent.

FLEET REACHES STOCKHOLM.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

FLOWER GROWERS WILL GET PRIZES

Huntington Civic Improvement League Will Reward Four Winners.

Huntington, Ind., June 3.—At a meeting of the Woman's Civic Improvement League at the library yesterday morning it was decided that four prizes would be given to the children contesting to see who could raise the prettiest flower and vegetable gardens during the summer. The seeds for the contest were given out some time ago by the women of the league. The prizes will be divided between the two classes of gardens. There will be a first and second prize for the best flower gardens and similar prizes for the best vegetable gardens.

An important part of the contest is that the contestants must belong to the Junior Civic Improvement League in order to be eligible to win a prize. To do this a button must be secured. Heretofore it was understood that the buttons to be given the Junior League were free. This is not the case, although the price of them is quite small, two cents. The buttons cost almost that much to manufacture and the league feels that they could not give them away.

It was decided at the meeting that no prizes would be given for the most beautiful lawn this summer. Instead a public honorable mention will be made of the owners of the prettiest lawns.

The project of joining the State Federation of Clubs was raised at the meeting, but members of the league decided that as most of problems with which the members concerned themselves were local ones, nothing could be gained by that alliance at this time.

HARTFORD CITY HOME BURNS.

Fire of Unknown Origin Destroys Seven Room Residence.

Hartford City, Ind., June 3.—Fire of an unknown origin destroyed the residence of S. A. James, on South Division street, about 3 o'clock yesterday morning. The family was unaware that the house was ablaze until Mr. James was awakened by the smoke. The summer kitchen and two back rooms of the house were in a mass of flames. The department quickly responded to the call, but was unable to save the building.

The loss is covered by insurance, $1,000 on the house and $300 on the contents, a small part of which were saved.

The house was a seven room structure, one and a half stories high. The origin of the blaze is a mystery for there had been no fire in the house since 6 o'clock. The house is wired for electricity and it may have been from this source that the fire started. Mr. James owns another house adjoining and the family has moved into it.

RECORD BREAKING CLASS

Bluffton, Ind., June 3.—A correct list of the forty-three high school graduates of this city, the subject of their thesis and the number of credits each has received was given out by Superintendent P. A. Allen. The class is a record breaker, in the way of being the largest, as the previous record for the largest class was made in 1886, just a quarter of a century being taken to break the record.

KENDALLVILLE A LITERARY TOWN

Much Book Borrowing from Public Library Continues Through Hot Weather.

Kendallville, Ind., June 3.—The last few weeks of extremely warm weather have had little or no effect on the reading public of this city. As a rule the majority of readers give up their studies during hot weather, but such has not been the case in this city.

The public library is keeping up its splendid record in the number of books loaned out, and the month of May, just closed, comes to the front with a showing which was really a little beyond expectation.

According to the report of the librarian, Mrs. J. M. Teal, a total of 813 books were loaned out during the month of May. In view of the fact that only a total of 603 cards have been taken out since the library was established this is an exceptionally good showing, for it demonstrates that the people who have started to patronize the library are coming again and that they appreciate its value.

During the same month there were forty-five new books placed upon the shelves and added to the library equipment, some of which were purchased by the library board while others have been donated. In addition to this there have been ordered $50 worth of new books, $25 worth for children and $25 worth for adults.

MAKES FULL CONFESSION.

Wabash Man Admits Robbery—Stolen Goods Recovered.

Wabash, Ind., June 3.—Fred DeArmond, of this city, arrested here Thursday on a charge of larceny, made a confession in the jail yesterday morning prior to being taken back to Lebanon, where in all probability he will enter a plea of guilty to having burglarized a store there about two months ago.

According to the facts which Chief of Police Bolte has, DeArmond went to Lebanon to visit his sister and while there he and another young man who resides in a small town between Lebanon and Indianapolis, broke into the clothing store and stole quite an amount of clothing and furnishings.

Chief Bolte located a part of the goods taken from the Lebanon store. The wearing apparel had been placed in a traveling bag and hidden beneath a vacant building. The goods were in good condition and had not been used. The bag and contents were turned over to the sheriff and the policeman who came here after DeArmond. In all probability the young man will receive a long jail sentence or possibly a prison term for the part he played in the affair. DeArmond's father, who lives here, is crushed over the affair, inasmuch as he has always done everything possible for his son.

It is Criminal to Neglect the Skin and Hair

THINK of the suffering entailed by neglected skin troubles — mental because of disfiguration, physical because of pain. Think of the pleasure of a clear skin, soft, white hands, and good hair. These blessings, so essential to happiness and even success in life, are often only a matter of a little thoughtful care in the selection of effective remedial agents. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment do so much for poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers everywhere, a postal to "Cuticura," Dept. B, Boston, will secure a liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on Skin and Scalp Treatment.

Bowels Act Fine After A 'Cascaret'

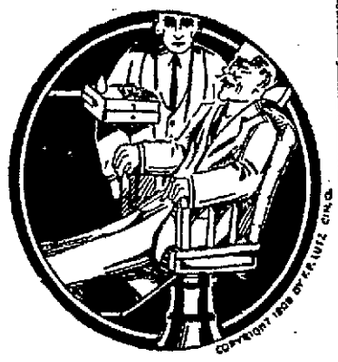
Keeps Millions of Folks Feeling Good All the Time—No Headache, Biliousness, Constipation or Bad Stomach.

It is a great deal more necessary to keep clean on the inside than on the outside. Cascarets are more important than soap. The pores of the skin may become clogged with dirt, but they don't absorb the impurities. The pores of the bowels do.

There are myriads of pores in the bowels, the duty of which is to absorb the nutriment from food. That's how we get our nourishment. But if the bowels are sluggish the food is delayed. It decays and forms gases and poisons. Then those pores of the bowels suck poison into the blood. That's how we get our ills.

We urge the habit of cleanliness. Don't wait till you need a physic. That leaves too much of the time when you are only half well. Keep yourself at your best. The right way is to carry a 10 cent box of Cascarets with you. It fits the pocket or purse. Take one just as soon as you know that you need it. It is gentle and sure.



IT DIDN'T HURT A BIT.

We do not believe in torturing people. We do believe in making necessary operations as painless and pleasant as possible. Gold crowns and bridgework attended to by us expertly and economically.

MANY AMERICANS DWELL IN LONDON

Seven Thousand There and They Are Found in All Walks of Life.

CENSUS BY CONSUL

(Associated Press Correspondence.)

London, May 27.—The American consul general, J. L. Griffith, asked by the state department for a report on the number of Americans resident in London, has given an estimate of about 7,000, but candidly says this is simply a guess. Several attempts have been made to determine the number of Americans living permanently here, but never with any great success. Only 375 Americans are today registered at the consulate general. American directories have also been published, but they contained even fewer names and those only of the well known Americans.

Mr. Griffith's estimate is considered quite conservative. Americans are found in every walk of life in London. They are, however, widely scattered. In the first place there are a great many Americans in business in London, but only a small proportion of these are members of the American society or kindred organizations, and the others, not generally known to their fellow-countrymen, are swallowed up in the great vortex of London's population of seven millions.

Another element adding greatly to the American population of London is the large number of young men employed as managers or experts, in British business houses and factories. This is particularly true of electrical concerns. The headquarters staff of the United Railways, which controls a great underground system, miles of tubes and connecting street railways, is composed for example largely of Americans, while the Central London railway, the original tube, now being extended in several directions, is being developed under the guidance of an American. Then the estimate must include the Americans of means, totalling many hundreds, who are making their homes here, and last but not least, the American women, who have married Englishmen.

In addition to London almost every city of any importance in the country has an American colony, and outside the cities many a country house has an American for owner or tenant.

There are men whom the London crowds will cheer more enthusiastically than they do the German emperor, but there is nobody they will turn out in greater numbers to see.

Ordinarily there must be a pageant of some sort to attract the Londoner. During the recent visit of the German emperor and empress and their daughter, however, they were greeted wherever they appeared by thousands of spectators, many of whom stood for hours simply to see the visitors. On the night of the gala performance at Drury Lane, which did not conclude until half an hour after midnight, the Strand and other streets through which the royal carriages passed were lined with people, although the carriages were closed and only the merest glimpse could be caught of the royal occupants.

While Anglo-German rivalry continues, the bitterness is disappearing, largely due to the efforts of the members of the royal families and men of influence in the political and commercial world. The visit of the German crown prince to India and his wholehearted expressions of admiration of British rule and of the Englishmen he met, had a good effect in helping to overcome the anti-German prejudice here, a movement which has been taken a step further by the visit of the emperor and his family. The visit reminded the British public that the emperor is closely related to their own royal family, and his attentions to the young Prince of Wales, in whom every Englishman takes a great pride, were very warmly appreciated. On the whole a distinct improvement can be noticed in the feelings of the British people toward Germany, even if the governments have not succeeded in bringing the points of view of the two foreign offices into harmony on world politics.

London, in late years, has become rather well acquainted with the prime ministers of the over-sea dominions. Sir Wilfred Laurier has attended all the colonial and imperial conferences and other big functions since he came into power in Canada in 1895; Sir Joseph Ward, premier of the Dominion of New Zealand, is almost as well known. Louis Botha, who led an army against the British forces in South Africa and now comes to England as premier of the federation of South Africa, was here for the imperial defense conference and was made much of.

The only premier who is attending his first conference is Andrew Fish, prime minister of the commonwealth of Australia, the picturesque figure in the present gathering of over-sea statesmen. Mr. Fisher was one of several sons of a poor Scottish miner, every one of whom has made his mark. The youngest of the family, Mr. Fisher started, as did the others, as a pit boy in a coal mine at Kilmarnock, when ten years of age. At twenty he was a labor leader and at twenty-three he was "blacklisted" for his activities as an organizer. This drove him in the early eighties to Australia, where he went to work in the gold fields. Less than ten years later, in 1893, he was elected to the Queensland legislature, and in 1901 took his seat in the first federal parliament; became a cabinet minister in 1904 and in 1908 became the first labor prime minister of any British parliament. His party was defeated the next year, but was returned to power in 1910.

The "first labor premier" has achieved distinct popularity with all parties in England. He announced upon his arrival that he had no intention of interfering in home politics and in his first public speech he made it clear that, while he was one with the British labor leaders in the matter of social reform, he differed very materially from them on the question of imperial defense.

TO WHAT GOAL?

Abolish competition, let the general government control all inter-state corporation business even to the fixing of prices—that is the proposal of Judge Gary, head of the steel trust. Isn't that going in that direction about as fast as the most rabid socialist could desire? The difference between that kind of a centralization carried to the logical result and the socialism of the books would essentially be that in the one case the narrowing circle of magnates would pocket the profits, whereas in the other the profits would be to all the people.

Judge Gary does not stand alone in his view of the thing to be done. Corporation magnates are getting tired of the harrying by government. Like the chairman of the steel trust they have been driven to the point where they want to know just how they stand, what they can do and to what extent they can depend on the future. It is a very natural concern and one that should be answered of course. But, if combination, merging and consolidation are to be recognized as the inevitable principle and method of big business, its field of operation must increase while control is drawn within constantly narrowing limits in some such ratio as combination continues to diminish the number of trusts. Theoretically this process in time would bring practically the business of the country within the control of a few men. The expansion of Standard Oil from the oil business into the banking business, the railway business, the steel business and other fields of financial, industrial and commercial activity furnishes an example. Trusts on larger scale then begin to absorb trusts, mergers cease to be a coalition of kindred pursuits, but become a fusion of financial interests desiring and prepared to take over everything—production, distribution and transportation—all, perhaps save agriculture. That is the logic of combination. Business becomes an oligarchy with a central government nominally or actually as overlord. Then would sooner or later have to be determined whether the oligarchy was government or the government oligarchy.

But if trust ruling and not trust busting is now the policy of government, the government should afford safe conduct to business. Judge Gary declares that to be what is needed and what is wanted. He believes it within the constitutional province of the government to do this and being a lawyer of high attainments his views have force. But finally to what issue will it lead? The socialist will jubilantly tell you to what goal, the pessimist to what despotism of wealth.

If a majority of the people in Indiana are impressed that the proposed new constitution is a good thing, that it will remedy the shortcomings of the old instrument of the state's organic law and meet the progressive needs of these later times in the right way they will adopt it. If they are not in that way impressed they will do the other thing. Meanwhile the Indiana courts are to pass upon the validity of the method by which it is sought to get the new instrument before the people. If the method is regular and lawful the people will settle the main question according to their lights. They are neither insane nor silly, neither irrationally partisan nor vicious. They will judge the new constitution for just what it is, estimate it by what it proposes, value it by what it guarantees.

It should take Mayor Grice and the city council no time at all to get together in an agreement that the asphalt pavements of the city should forthwith be repaired and not much more time to agree on the course to be pursued. If the city is going to purchase repair equipment, as it is probable will be done when the question is taken up, the less time there is lost in making the appropriation and procuring what is needed the more money there will be saved to the taxpayers. The city cannot escape its duty to maintain the streets and delay in meeting the situation only adds to the culpability of whoever may be responsible for obstruction.

The democratic compromise on the wool schedule may have been but a poor display of courage, but it certainly has carried little comfort to the distraught hearts of the standpats in congress. It has put a fairly effectual gag in the mouths of the free trade alarmists and ultra-protectionist roarers. There is some merit in that, at least, for it will have some effect in forcing a more rational discussion of the tariff next year.

The first of the alleged bribe-takers in the Ohio legislature to be brought to trial was acquitted. Pittsburg has just dismissed a job-lot of bribery and graft cases that were a part of the general mess uncovered in the municipal council a year or two ago. Illinois has so far failed to convict any of her "jackpot" heroes or any of the patriots who assisted to "put Lorimer over." Bribery and graft in public office are notoriously common—so common, indeed, that such crimes have come to be taken as a matter of course and conviction of the criminals as not at all to be desired.

The plots to assassinate Madero, to blow him sky high with dynamite, to entagle him in nets, to plunge him into pitfalls all seem to indicate that he is either hated by his enemies with a hatred that burns at incandescent heat or that he has a press agent whose salary we hope is commensurate and whose prospects of promotion we trust are bright.

The government bulletin lays down the prediction that the south will this year harvest the largest crop of cotton ever raised in the United States. This is further proof that the bull ring in New Orleans is not trying to corner the commodity but is merely taking advantage of a small crop and a coming shortage.

How Morgan saved the country was the burden of much of Judge Gary's testimony before the house committee now investigating the steel trust. Your jolly Uncle Pierp is about the greatest little saver we have and he's saved a whole lot more than the country.

Rotting pavements full of unsightly and dangerous holes make no fine spectacle. Neither do they create a fine feeling in the bosoms of the property owners who have been assessed to pay for them.

AN EASTERN WATER FAMINE.

New York, Boston and the larger cities of New England are confronting a really dangerous possibility, namely, a water famine, but for New York the prospect is most alarming. Waterworks that are expected to be equal to the demands of the city for the next hundred years are in course of construction and, when completed, will be one of the wonders of the world; but, unfortunately, they will not be ready for use for three years. Meanwhile, water in the Croton aqueduct—the present source of supply—is low, and city authorities are already considering plans for compelling an economic use of water by citizens. They may be ordered to refrain entirely from sprinkling their lawns, where such exist, or their sidewalks, and there is talk of limiting the supply for buildings. Already the street cleaning department has been forbidden to flush the streets, and required to depend wholly on sweeping.

It appears that New York state has not had a normal rainfall for a number of years; this past winter had but a small snowfall, and the total shortage from March 1, 1910, to March 1, 1911, is nearly thirteen inches; also, a drought has prevailed over the region throughout this entire spring. With a spring shortage of rain, summer precipitation, never very heavy in normal seasons, can not supply the deficiency unless it comes in floods, and with this situation to consider, there is good reason for anxiety. It is agreed that most rigid economy in water is necessary and the public is being appealed to to do its part.

In Boston people are being urged to be sparing in the use of water and suburban owners of lawns are rebuked for sprinkling. Let the grass burn, if it will, they are told; it will grow again in time; it should not be cherished at the expense of the public health. Low and empty reservoirs mean a dangerous state of affairs compared to which the condition of grass and shrubbery is of no consequence.

The eastern states have so little influence on the crop reports that this prevailing lack of water there has attracted little attention in the west. Rains all over the middle and western states have been abundant and the crop prospects were never better. The eastern drought will cause distress in an agricultural way to many individuals, but the main trouble will come to the cities from the lessened water supply. A student of the rainfall records in New York state notes a steady decrease for a series of years and notes corresponding lowering of the streams. The present situation may resolve itself in the end into an object lesson on the need of forest conservation, for within ten years there has been a great deal of needless timber cutting in that state, as in many others.

HOW WILL TRUSTS CHANGE?

(Toledo Blade.)

Two great trusts are to be dissolved within the next few months. They have been ordered to change the entire character of their organization, though the character of their business may change not at all.

The situation is one that will test the mental agility of the biggest business men and the biggest commercial lawyers of the country. An opportunity exists for such another inventor as the man who devised the modern trust. Of course, the opportunity will be seized, the devise will be promulgated—and then, mayhap, congress will spend another long and futile period in attempting to shove crowbars into the machinery of social evolution.

We believe that trusts, whether under that name or under an entirely new one, will remain. We believe that they represent a form of the unification of the world which neither laws, prosecution, spasmodic public wrath, nor all the reservoirs of criticism possessed of our public speakers and writers can stay. They will go on to the last chapter of the experiment. Good or bad, they are founded upon stones in the social organization and until that organization is torn down or utterly changed the trusts will continue. They are associations of capital, of human beings, of forces, of powers, of ambitions. So also are trade unions, charitable societies, civic improvement bodies, consumers' leagues, farmers' buying and selling associations, modern municipalities and the closer knitting states and nations. Can one go and not destroy or affect another?

New legislation, if it is to be effective and sensible, must be regulative. All former and present legislation touching the problem has failed wherever it has merely been prohibitive.

EUROPE BEATING US?

(Pittsburg Dispatch.)

Clifford Harmon, the amateur aviator, just returned from abroad, thinks America has been outstripped in the flying game. In Europe, he says, they are flying every day, and have big machines with which we have now nothing that can compare.

In Europe they are still wildly excited over the aeroplane. Here we seem to have been satisfied with having seen the birdmen fly, accepting the so-called conquest of the air as a fact accomplished and letting it go at that. It was a nine days' wonder, but no longer makes much impression upon our practical mind. The aeroplane is yet too much of a toy to arouse more than curiosity here, a curiosity satiated when we had visual demonstration of man's aerial flight. But in Europe aviation is still a popular craze, fanned to some extent by the military interest shown by the governments. The records that a year or two ago were being made by Americans with American machines are now held by Europeans. There is even difficulty getting together a suitable team to represent this country in the international meet in England in July. The Wrights and Curtiss are devoting their time to experiments with a view to practical development rather than in exhibition flights. True the French are also experimenting, but largely along military lines with the support of the government. Americans, less driven by military necessity and seeing no immediate practical possibilities for regular aerial transportation, are content to await developments with a certain confidence that in the long run America will be found holding its own, if not indeed leading the procession, if aerial navigation ever reaches the practical, every-day stage.

Were the First to Preach the Gospel of Christ in This Part of the State.

The Pioneer Churches of Fort Wayne Were Those of the Catholic, Lutheran, Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist Denominations—Here Early in the Last Century.

When LaSelle, the first explorer of the northwestern territory, penetrated the region in which Fort Wayne is located the man of God was with him, and early in the last half of the seventeenth century here, at the confluence of the St. Mary's and St. Joseph rivers with the Maumee, came the Jesuit missionaries to lift up the banner of the cross among the Miami Indians, who at that time made this their home.

History has it that Father Allouez, a devout Jesuit missionary, was here as early as 1681. Other French priests followed him. They came to teach the Catholic religion, in broken Indian tongue, to the native inhabitants, and they were as a rule cordially received, missionary stations being established at an early day in all the principal Indian villages of the northwest.

Thus for many years, before and after the white trader came, the Miami Indians dwelling around Fort Wayne had been given an introduction to Christianity. After the white settlers came it was a long time, however, before there was an established church of any denomination here. Catholic priests and Protestant ministers occasionally visited the settlement, but it was not until the beginning of the nineteenth century, and it had been well advanced, that history began to write the record of the churches in Fort Wayne.

Dates Back to 1812.

In the way of an established church here Presbyterianism antedates all the other denominations. Its history in Fort Wayne really began in 1812, when Rev. Matthew G. Wallace, a Presbyterian minister, accompanying the army of General Harrison, served for a time as chaplain at the old fort.

The first Presbyterian minister, however, to preach by ecclesiastical appointment to the pioneer settlers was Rev. John Ross, one of the heroic missionaries of the denomination in Indiana, familiarly known as "Father Ross." He came here in 1822 on his missionary tour and from that time until 1826 visited this place and held religious services frequently, sowing the spiritual seed that led to the establishment of the church here.

In 1829 the Home Missionary society of the church sent Rev. Charles E. Furman as a missionary to Fort Wayne and he suggested the organization of a Presbyterian church here. This was done two years later, in 1831, with eleven members, and Rev. James Chute was sent here as pastor in charge—the first regular pastor in Fort Wayne.

The little congregation had no regular house of worship. Services were held in such buildings as could be secured for the purpose, first in a carpenter shop, then in the back room of Judge Hanna's store and afterwards in the Masonic hall, which was located on West Columbia street. It was not until 1837 that a church was built. It was a frame building forty feet square, located on the south side of Berry street, between Barr and Lafayette streets.

Pastor's Salary Was $258.

At the time Rev. Mr. Chute was called here as pastor the town had a population of 350. The adherents of all the Protestant religious denominations united in his support, and all they could pay him for his services was $258 a year. This amount was raised by a subscription paper circulated. It bore the date of July 12, 1831, and read as follows:

"We, the undersigned citizens of Fort Wayne and vicinity, being very desirous of procuring the services of a resident minister of the gospel among us, do agree to pay the several sums annexed to our names in aid of the support of Rev. James Chute for one year at this place."

The pledge paper bore the following names: Samuel Hanna, Allen Hamilton, Smallwood Noel, David Archer, Wm. N. Hood, H. Hanna, Z. B. Tenny, James Barnett, A. L. Davis, William Rockhill, Samuel Lewis, Abner Gerard, R. L. Britton, Samuel Edsall, L. G. Thompson, Ann Turner, William Suttenfield, Samuel Brown, Thomas Daniels, James McIntosh, jr., James Daniels Ph. Klinger, James D. Klinger, John Klinger, Wm. Caster, Robert Hood, H. Rudisill, J. H. Griggs, Rebecca Hackley, Matthew Griggs, M. M. Merriman, John Jeffcoat, Hill & Henderson, L. H. Davis, Isaac Patterson, Francis Alexander, Hiram Weese, Simon Edsall, John B. Dubois, Chas. S. Griggs, William Wilson, Lewis Armstrong and John McIntosh.

The subscription of James Barnett was $20, and those of Robert Hood and Samuel Hanna $15. The others subscribed amounts varying from $10 downward, the lowest subscription being $1. Most of those signing this subscription were men who were prominent in public affairs at that early period.

Rev. Mr. Chute, who came under this call and at this small salary, remained here until his death, which occurred on September 23, 1835, laboring heroically for the spiritual uplift of Fort Wayne in those pioneer times. His wife, who shared his sacrifices and labored with him, died in 1833. Both were buried in Lindenwood. A handsome monument marks their graves.

An Early Day Church.

The Baptists date their history in Fort Wayne back to 1820. It, however, was not continuous, there being a period of some fifteen years between that time and the establishment, in 1837, of an organized congregation, during which the Baptists as a local denomination had no existence here.

In 1822 Rev. Isaac McCoy, a Baptist missionary, came to Fort Wayne and preached to the Indians and few whites here and in 1822 was joined by Rev. John Sears, another Baptist missionary. During their ministrations a congregation of eleven members was organized. It consisted of eight whites, two Indians and one black man.

Revs. McCoy and Sears were soon called to other fields and the little local flock here was left under the pastoral care of a brother of Rev. Sears. This brother died a few months afterwards from malarial fever, and the congregation, left without a pastor, was disbanded, the members worshiping with the Presbyterians.

In 1837, however, a permanent church organization was effected by Rev. Robert Tinsdale, who, with Revs. French and Moore, had preached here occasionally. Rev. Tinsdale remained as pastor. The first members of the congregation were Richard Worth, Elizabeth Worth, John Fairfield, William Worth, Sarah Swope, Hannah Worth, Meriam Sawtelle, Ann Archer, Elizabeth Morgan and Ann Girard.

The progress of the new church at first was very slow and for much of the time the church was without a pastor. Finally, in October, 1841, Rev. William Glindersleeve was secured as pastor. Under his ministry a small frame church was built on "Clay hill," a lot donated by Samuel Hanna, which in 1848 was removed to the corner of Berry and Clinton. At this place the congregation worshiped until the edifice at the present location on West Jefferson street was built, which was during the pastorate of Dr. G. L. Stevens. He became pastor in September of 1851 and continued as such for seven years.

Pioneers in Methodism.

The beginning of Methodism in Fort Wayne, as in many other places, was due to the labors of a local preacher, Rev. James Holman, who came to this frontier settlement in 1824 from Central Indiana and purchased a farm in what is now known as Nebraska, near where the Nickel Plate railroad crosses the St. Mary's river. He was a zealous Christian worker and held religious services in his log cabin every Sunday he did not preach at some other point throughout this region.

The first regularly ordained minister, however, among the Methodists to preach here was Rev. James Hargraves, a missionary, who came here periodically from 1827 to 1831. Under him a Methodist congregation was organized in 1830 and Rev. Nehemiah Griffith sent here as pastor, this being one of the several charges of which he had control. He was what was known in those early days and for years afterward as "the circuit rider," one of those heroic, self-sacrificing men who did so much for the advancement of Christianity in the early years of the last century.

Religious services were held in the homes of different pioneers and among the early day members were Robert Brackenridge and wife, James Holman and wife and Mrs. Simon Edsall. It was not until 1830 that an attempt was made to build a house of worship, and it was not until 1840 that the little congregation was successful in getting it. The church finally erected was a small frame building that stood at the corner of Harrison and Berry streets, where the Anthony hotel is now located. It was replaced some years afterward by a brick structure.

Lutherans Here Early.

The first Lutheran congregation in Indiana was the one that was organized in Fort Wayne in a room in the old court house on the 14th of October, 1837. There were present at the organization the heads of twenty-three families and sixty-five persons entered their names on the register roll. At the first election held Adam Wefel and Henry Trier were chosen as elders, and Henry Rudisill and Conrad Nill as deacons.

The congregation organized was the St. Paul Lutheran, the parent congregation from which has sprung all the other German Lutheran congregations in the city. The first pastor called was Rev. Jesse Hoover, of Woodstock, Va. He was a man of grand character and universally loved, but his career here was short, his death occurring in May, 1838. His successor was Rev. Frederick Wyneken, who served until 1845, when Rev. Dr. Sihler, a man who attained eminence in Lutheranism, was called as the pastor.

During the ministry of Rev. Wyneken the congregation left the court house, where the worship services were held, and moved into a brick building at the corner of Harrison and Superior streets, but soon after they built a frame church structure, 24x40 feet, on Barr street, the site of the present splendid St. Paul edifice, and in this all their services were held.

Catholics in History.

Brief mention has been made in a foregoing paragraph to the coming of Catholic missionaries to Fort Wayne and the holding of services here as early as the latter part of the seventeenth century. It was not, however, until the nineteenth century dawned and had been pretty well advanced that the Catholics as a denomination began writing their history here.

Among the distinguished priests visiting this locality in pioneer times was Very Rev. Stephen Theodore Badin, the first priest ordained in the United States. He was here in 1831, on which occasion he offered mass at the residence of Francis Comparet and where the first baptism of record in the county was administered, the administration of it being by Father Badin. It may also be of interest to mention that this distinguished prelate also performed the first marriage ceremony of record on the Catholic register in this county—the marriage of James Aveline and Catherine Comparet, the date being February 13, 1831.

The first Catholic priest serving the charge regularly was Rev. S. P. Lalumiere. Then came Father Felix M. Ruff, Father J. F. Tervooren and Father Jeancoir, the latter being succeeded in August, 1836, by Rev. Louis Mueller, who was the first resident priest. He remained four years and after him came Rt. Rev. Julian Benoit, who some years afterward was made vicar general of the diocese of Fort Wayne, the first to hold that office. The death of this loved and distinguished priest occurred on December 26, 1886.

During the year 1835 a portion of the present Cathedral square was purchased and on it the first house of worship of the Catholics in Fort Wayne, a frame building, known as St. Augustine's church, was erected. It remained for a long time unplastered, poverty's offering to the service of God, a wonderfully marked contrast to the magnificent buildings now standing on the Cathedral square.

When preparations were made for building the present Cathedral this old frame building was moved to the east side of the square, facing Clinton street, and a few years afterwards was destroyed by fire. The Cathedral was built in 1860. It cost $54,000, not counting the $9,000 expended for organ, pews, furniture, etc. Since then thousands of dollars of improvements have been added to the Cathedral. And it is only one of the many splendid churches and other buildings that the Catholics have in Fort Wayne.

Strength of the Church.

These five denominations—the Catholics, Lutherans, Methodists, Baptists and Presbyterians—are the pioneer church denominations of Fort Wayne. The other denominations were established here later. It might be interesting to trace in detail their early history, but it will not be gone in this article.

Fort Wayne today is a city of churches. Every denomination of religion, almost, is represented here—some of them by two, three, four, five, six and seven congregations. The city has fifty church edifices where religious services are held on the Lord's day, and among them are many that are beautiful and costly. In the splendor of her churches Fort Wayne is surpassed by but few cities and in church population is strong. Conservative estimates place it at 35,000, which is over one-half the census population of the city.

Will It Reduce Your Expenses?

WILL the Canadian Reciprocity bill do you any good? If you want cheaper flour, would it be better to keep the 113,000,000 bushels of wheat we now export or bring in other wheat from Canada? If you want cheaper meat, would it help more to let down the bars against Argentina, where cattle is raised, or Canada, where cattle is not raised? Do you want to know what the Reciprocity bill and other tariff changes actually mean to you? Read the story beginning on page 707 of Pearson's Magazine, now on sale. ## Judge Gary Gives Version of Tennessee Coal & Iron Co. Deal.

AVERTED BIG PANIC

Washington, D. C., June 3.—Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel corporation, told the Stanley congressional steel trust investigating committee yesterday that his corporation stood behind J. Pierpont Morgan in averting a disastrous financial upheaval in 1907.

The witness insisted, challenging the statement of John W. Gates before the committee, that the purchase by the steel corporation of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company at that time was made at a price more than it was worth, for the express purpose of preventing the crash of the New York banking firm of Moore & Schley.

Mr. Gary related a dramatic story of the momentous events which preceded the absorbtion of the Tennessee concern. He described in detail how he and Henry C. Frick, at the instance of Mr. Morgan, had revealed the plan of buying the company at a price greater than its value to President Roosevelt and Mr. Root, then secretary of state.

Would Have Been an Outrage.

He told how he had concluded after their interview with Mr. Roosevelt that any government prosecution of their act would have been an "outrage."

Mr. Gary announced to the committee that he wanted everything known concerning the steel corporation. More than all, he pleaded for some responsible government source to which such a necessary great corporation could appeal for guidance in the conduct of its business.

He agreed to furnish the committee so much it wishes to know that he will be recalled when it meets again next Wednesday.

Others who have been summoned to appear are W. B. Dickson, of the steel corporation, and John Lambert, of the Republic Iron and Steel company.

Gary on Tennessee Coal and Iron.

The acquisition of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company by the United States Steel corporation was taken up at the hearing late in the afternoon. Representative Littleton conducted the inquiry for the committee. Mr. Gary was permitted to make a full statement regarding that transaction.

"Several offers," he said, "had been made to us by people representing the Tennessee Coal and Iron company to sell at different times before the fall of 1907. The steel corporation had always been opposed to the purchase of the property and distinctly said so on various occasions.

"Early in 1907 Mr. Morgan sent for me and said that Mr. George Kessler, who had purchased stocks of the Tennessee company outside the Grant B. Schley syndicate, had approached him with the statement that the Tennessee company could be purchased at 130. I told Mr. Morgan it was not worth having at that price. Mr. Frick later expressed the same opinion and the matter then was dropped. I believe at that time Mr. Morgan said that Kessler represented only himself and not any of the members of the Schley syndicate.

Gives Loan Agreement Details.

"But about Oct. 23, 1907, Mr. Morgan asked me to come to his bank and told me that Mr. Schley, managing director of the Tennessee company, was much in need of money to use at the bank, the firm of Moore & Schley. I think I saw Mr. Schley then, but the business finally resulted in my accommodating Mr. Schley with a loan of $1,200,000 par value of United States Steel second bonds and taking from him an agreement to return these bonds and I received as security for the fulfillment of that agreement $2,000,000 par value stock of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company.

"The agreement provided that if the loan was not returned by April 23, 1908, the ownership of the $2,000,000 of Tennessee company stock should remain in the control of the United States Steel corporation. It was an accommodation to Schley at his urgent request, and because he stated it was absolutely necessary to protect him from financial trouble. That loan, you see, was taking Tennessee Coal and Iron on the basis of 60."

Mr. Gary submitted this loan agreement to the committee.

Comes Up at Panic Time.

About Nov. 2, 1907, amid a financial panic, the matter came up again, the witness said. The Trust Company of America was in difficulty. John W. Gates testified last week this bank was responsible for Mr. Morgan's efforts to sell the Tennessee company to the Steel corporation in order to save the trust company which had loaned too heavily on the Tennessee stock. Mr. Gary referred to the possibility then of suspension of many banks and failure of many people.

The witness told of the Morgan library conference with Mr. Morgan and Louis Cass Ledyard, counsel for Col. Oliver Payne, one of the syndicate that purchased the controlling interest in the Tennessee company. Mr. Gary said Mr. Ledyard told him Moore & Schley were largely indebted to Mr. Payne and had many of his securities. They had deposited with their securities on their indebtedness of $30,000,000 many shares of the Tennessee Coal and Iron stock with many banks.

"The banks had called these loans," said Mr. Gary, "and were insisting that Moore & Schley take up the Tennessee Coal and Iron stock. It was not salable. I will not say that it had been manipulated, but it was a stock that had been, through a period of many years, raised from a low to a high price. It had been under the control of a syndicate that influenced great fluctuations.

Morgan Advises to Prevent Failure.

"It was represented that Moore & Schley had pledged $6,000,000 of this stock in the various banks. Mr. Ledyard said there was no possible way to prevent the failure of Moore & Schley unless we purchased this stock, and he believed the failure of Moore & Schley would mean the failure of many banks.

"Mr. Morgan said to me, 'I don't know whether the United States Steel corporation can afford to purchase this stock or not. You know best as to that. If it does not buy it, if the United States Steel corporation or some one else does not furnish relief, no man can say what the effect will be on the financial situation throughout the country. The situation is extremely critical. If you can see your way clear to buy it I have no doubt such action will relieve the situation. I will turn Mr. Ledyard over to you to see what you can do.'

"I said I would not consider taking any action without going to Washington and taking the situation up with the president or the department of justice.

Morgan Questions Federal Power.

"'Have they any right,' asked Mr. Morgan, 'to say whether the United States Steel corporation shall buy this company or not'?

"I said 'no, but here is a financial crisis; the purpose of buying this stock is to overcome the tendency toward a panic: and if the president or the department of justice should find out that such action was being taken and should enjoin us on the ground that the acquisition or holding of the stock created a monopoly, what we had done would make the financial situation much worse than it is now.' Mr. Morgan said this was forcible reasoning."

The witness said Mr. Frick agreed with him the stock was not worth more than 65. Not until Mr. Morgan told what he thought about the panic did Mr. Frick give any encouragement to the plan. The finance committee of the Steel corporation was summoned to the Morgan library.

Frick Submits Proposition.

"Mr. Frick," said Mr. Gary, "offered a resolution proposing that we offer to loan Mr. Schley $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 in cash, taking the Tennessee Coal and Iron company securities as collateral. If that offer failed to supply Mr. Schley's wants, it was proposed then to buy the stock on the basis of 90, payable in steel corporation stock.

"Mr. Ledyard said that would not do at all; that several persons offered to loan $1,000,000 each to Mr. Schley so that his total resources would amount to $8,000,000 or $9,000,000, but that he couldn't possibly get through with that. Mr. Frick and myself then conferred with Mr. Schley and tried to get him to take the loan; we didn't want the stock."

The witness said Schley told Frick he must sell the stock to keep him from bankruptcy; that unless he was mistaken, an assignment already had been drawn up for Moore & Schley, for their creditors, and that Schley's attorney, Thomas Thatcher, might be able to tell of such an assignment.

Agree to Purchase Stock.

"I have heard since," said Mr. Gary, "that Schley has made statements that he could have got through all right, but any one who heard him at that time would not have thought so. Therefore I began to talk to Ledyard about purchase of the stock at 90 and we finally agreed to it, subject to the objection that might possibly be made in Washington.

"We were all clearly of the opinion," said Mr. Gary to Representative Littleton, "that the attorney general might not have the right to indorse the transaction."

The steel corporation, he said, had at that time about $75,000,000 on deposit in banks and could not have withdrawn more than $5,000,000 without creating great financial disturbance.

"After the agreement had been made to take the Tennessee stock at 90," said Mr. Gary, "Ledyard came to me and said Schley had told him the price of 90 could not let them out of their difficulties. I notice Gates says in his testimony that when he got home from Europe he made them raise the price in the transaction. If he made that statement it must have been by Marconi, because the whole transaction was closed before his arrival from Europe.

"On Nov. 4 at a meeting of the finance committee of the corporation the entire matter was again referred to the chairman, and I agreed with Ledyard to raise the price to 100 in order to let Moore and Schley pull through. My bargain was entirely with Ledyard.

"Mr. Morgan certainly did not participate in any way to induce the buying or selling. I hold no brief for Mr. Morgan, but I state this because of the sensational statements that have been made."

Submits Plan to Roosevelt.

After the agreement to buy the stock at 100 the finance committee of the steel corporation met and discussed putting the deal up to President Roosevelt. Mr. Gary said that at 10 o'clock Sunday night, Nov. 4, he called up the secretary to the president from New York to arrange for the conference. He and Mr. Frick left that night, traveling on a special train and hurried to the white house ahead of the appointed hour, "as Mr. Morgan had told us the conditions were so critical he would like to hear the result of our conference at the earliest possible moment."

"After hearing our story," continued Mr. Gary, "the president said he would like to consult with the department of justice. Mr. Bonaparte was out of town and the president called Secretary of State Root into his office. The president asked me again to state the case. I did, and the result of that interview I immediately wired to New York."

"Did the president ask Secretary Root's opinion as to the legality of the transaction?" asked Mr. Littleton.

"He did," replied Mr. Gary, "and there was no disagreement between any of us."

Mr. Gary then told the committee he had a record of what took place on that occasion. On Nov. 7, two days after the visit to the white house, he had written to Secretary Root, reviewing the entire conference as he remembered it, and asking Secretary Root if this agreed with his recollection.

Root and Gary Correspond.

This letter reviewed the facts presented to the president—namely: that the United States Steel corporation had the opportunity to purchase more than one-half of the capital stock of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company at a prices in excess of its actual value; that the purchase would greatly benefit threatening financial conditions and avert the failure of an important concern; that the purchase would not materially increase the amount of steel business controlled by the United States Steel corporation.

Mr. Gary stated in his letter he understood the president to say that while he would not make any promise as to what the government would do he certainly would not stand in the way.

Mr. Root wrote Mr. Gary on Nov. 11 stating the account of the conference fully agreed with his recollection and that he had sent a copy of Mr. Gary's letter and his answer to the president, recommending the latter transmit it to the department of justice for its permanent files. This letter was followed by this acknowledgment from President Roosevelt: "Mr. Gary states the facts as I remember them."

SOCIETY

June has come in with a long train of social events on her calender. First the weddings and second the school commencements, with card parties and many a musical attraction scattered in between so that there will be enough to keep young and old interested and busy in their own affairs and those of their friends. The coming week will bring both parties and weddings besides a musical contest at the public high school building of seventh and eighth grade pupils under the direction of Prof. William Miles, and a concert at the Lyceum of St. Patrick's, which will be given by Miss Gordon and the Misses Miller. The judge of the contest of public school pupils will be William ApMadoc, of Chicago. Mr. ApMadoc is a Welshman and is considered a fine judge of ensemble singing. Frequent rehearsals are being held for students' recitals, all of which are to come off this month, though invitations to them are not yet issued. There are frequent pre-nuptial parties and a number of social attentions for visiting guests. During the coming week Mrs. Charles Bush, Miss Worden's guest, will be honored by a party for which Misses Hester and Virginia Bash will be the hostesses and a luncheon which Mrs. Will Campbell will give.

No prettier pre-nuptial party has been given than Miss Grace Philley's this afternoon when she entertained a dozen young girls in honor of Miss Agnes Beaver, who is to wed Everette Fisher, on June 12. Miss Philley entertained at her home, south of the city, and the guests found many beautiful decorations in the color plan of yellow and white besides an elaborate luncheon that was served at 5 o'clock. Both the house and the porch were trimmed with festoons of smilax, hanging baskets of flowers and ferns and bowls of flowers. The diningroom was trimmed with festoons of smilax and marguerites that extended from the chandelier to the corners of the table. In the center of the table was a bowl of marguerites and at each plate lay a hand-painted card of a bride and a bouquet of the yellow and white daisies. Crystal candlesticks were filled with yellow candles to light the table and the dainty coloring was very effective. The livingroom was decorated with many pink roses, that touch of color being the only one that varied from the general scheme. The guests presented the bride-elect with a show of gifts to use in her new home. Mrs. Leander Stratton, of Gary, a sister of Miss Beaver, was a visiting guest.

Mrs. E. C. Gerke, of West DeWald street, has issued invitations to a five hundred party she will give on Thursday afternoon, June 8.

* * *

Mrs. Ernest W. Cook has issued one hundred and fifty invitations to a bridge party she will give on Thursday afternoon, June 15, in Minuet hall.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. John Boyle, of New Haven avenue, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Henrietta, to E. A. Giant, which will take place in St. Mary's church on Tuesday morning of June 20.

Miss Helen Peters, assisted by Mrs. F. C. Peters and Miss Georgiana Bond, formed an entertainment committee for this afternoon at the Country club. The plan of making a social feature for ladies on Saturday afternoon, a plan maintained by the Golf club for many years, will be continued at the new quarters. Simple refreshments are served to make the visitors feel more at home than they might otherwise and a different committee entertains each week.

Among several small parties given in honor of Mrs. Charles Bush, of Kansas City, Mo., who is the guest of Miss Worden, was an informal musical at the home of Miss Hadji Dawson on Thursday. Mrs. Bush and Miss Emil Verweire contributed piano numbers, Miss Florence Lang, Miss Agnes Stemen and Ronald Dawson sang and Howard Van Sweringen gave selections from a victrola. The rooms were decorated with jars of peonies. Mrs. C. M. Dawson, Mrs. James Meriwether and Miss Jane Meriwether served delicious refreshments.

Mrs. W. G. Zarht, of Hoagland avenue, gave a beautiful dinner party last evening in honor of Miss May Arnold, whose wedding will take place very soon. Intimate friends of the coming bride were present, there being covers for ten. The table had a basket of pink and white peonies for its center decoration and a fluffy bow of tulle ornamented the top of the handle. A bouquet of bride roses indicated Miss Arnold's chair and each guest received favors of a pink rose and a tiny bridal slipper. Pink candles in crystal holders added further beauty to the table, and the pleasure of the compony was enhanced by the deliciousness of the repast.

The Misses Teresa and Clara Schwartz, of Washington boulevard east, gave last evening the first of a series of pre-nuptial parties in honor of Miss Mary Kavanaugh, a bride to be of this month. It was a shower party and presenting the honor guest with a number of gifts was one of the chief pleasures of the evening. Yellow and white were colors of the decorating scheme. The diningroom was especially pretty. The favors were tiny gilt baskets filled with candy hearts and the place cards had messages of congratulation and good wishes written on them. As a further sign of good luck gilded wishbones were tied to the cards with white ribbons. There were present to enjoy this pretty affair Misses Esther Neidhart, Celeste Miller, Louise Bogenschutz, Laura Haffner, Gertrude Kocks, Stella Gruber, Addie Luley, Rose and Marie App, Marie Tonsing, Anna Deininger, Cecelia Mettler, Cecelia Lenhart, Katherine Kavanaugh, Anna App, Clara Woehnker, Mrs. George Deininger. ## LIVING FLAG OF SCHOOL CHILDREN

Pretty Evening Feature of Turnfest Beginning on June 16.

PROGRAM A BIG ONE

But two weeks remain before the coming of thousands of visitors for the kries turnfest to be held in Fort Wayne June 16, 17, 18 and 19, and one of the pretty features of the opening night exercises at the court house square will be the formation of a living flag by some 700 to 800 Fort Wayne school children. Massed upon a grandstand to be erected there, one side will represent the American emblem, red, white and blue, and the other the turner flag of black, red and gold. Children will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner," "America" and "Die Wacht am Rhein."

There will be a monster torchlight parade on this opening Friday evening preceding the exercises at the court house square. The City Packard band will render a concert program, the united singers of Fort Wayne will have several numbers on the program, and addresses by Mayor Jesse Grice, Chairman Victor Kalteyer, of the turners' committee, and by Hon. Adolph Roggen, president of the Indiana district.

Reception of Turners.

Fort Wayne turners, with a band, will meet all incoming trains on Friday to welcome the visiting societies from Cleveland in a special train, from Toledo, Dayton, Cincinnati, Newport, Ky., Covington, Ky., Louisville, Ky., Danville, Ill.; Chicago in a special train, Grand Rapids and Detroit.

Friday evening also there will be a meeting of the judges at Turner hall, where the rules will be explained in detail and the judges will be given plans of work and a book giving all possible information in order that no confusion may ensue.

Contests Begin Saturday.

Saturday morning the contests will begin on the turnfield at the Driving park. Each society will first have to go through an obligatory marching drill and free exercises. The field events, shot put, three consecutive standing broad jumps and far-high jumps in which each man must enter, will be next on the program. Arrangements have been made on the field so that nine societies will work simultaneously.

Saturday afternoon the apparatus exercises will begin. Each man must perform two exercises on the horizontal bar, two on the parallel bars and two on the horse. All the contestants will start at the same time, and about forty judges will watch their work. Exhibition features, especially by the ladies' classes, will be given at the same time.

Parade Saturday Evening.

Work at the Driving park will stop at 4:30 o'clock on Saturday, and an hour later the men will be conveyed downtown in special cars for the big parade of the meeting. This promises to be an exceptionally fine feature of the turnfest. All the visiting societies will march, and the German societies of Fort Wayne will be represented by floats, each symbolizing the character of the society. The floats will be original in character and of an entirely different type than any previously seen in this city.

Saturday evening will occur the exhibition at the baseball park, which will be brilliantly illuminated for the occasion. The societies entering here will show many special features of their own work, and the ladies' classes and the school children will be largely represented.

Program for Sunday.

Sunday morning will be given over to rehearsal at the Driving park for the great mass drills, and at 9 o'clock the special field events will begin, three former and two additional events to be shown in the series of five, and in order to be eligible to compete here the man must have scored at least seven points in the first three field events.

At the same time there will be mental exercises at Turner hall—debates, declamation of poems, singing, reading of prize essays, etc.

Sunday afternoon model exercises will be given at the Driving park and later the mass drills, in which all outside teams will be represented. The program will also include a reed drill for ladies and a free exercise for men. The distribution of awards will occur in the evening.

Monday, the final day of the gathering, will be given over to seeing the sights and a picnic at Germania park in the afternoon.

CHRISTIAN HOSTS TO COME NEXT WEEK

State Convention of Indiana Sunday School Workers Will Take Possession of Fort Wayne for the Annual Meeting—Expected to Be Association's Greatest Yearly Gathering Since Its Organization.

Distinguished Speakers and Eminent Workers in the Sunday School Cause Will Come from Many Parts of the Country for the Four Days' Session Which Begins Next Thursday—Great Parade Saturday.

Enthusiastic Christian men and women from every county in the state, from city and town and very many of the county districts, will be in Fort Wayne on Thursday of next week in attendance upon the state convention of the Indiana Sunday School association. It will be the largest body of religious workers that has ever assembled in Fort Wayne. Geo. N. Burnie, of Indianapolis, the state secretary of the association, says:

"Every indication is that the Fort Wayne convention will be the largest ever held by the association in Indiana. We expect delegates from every county. The program is an exceptionally strong one and it promises to be not only the largest but the best convention ever held by the Sunday school workers of the state."

The convention begins Thursday and continues over Sunday. Two churches are to be used for its sessions. The main sessions will be held at the Baptist church and the sessions of the elementary educational department at the Plymouth Congregational church. The Christ Lutheran church will be used for the meetings of committees.

Some of the Speakers.

Sunday school men of national prominence will be here as speakers. One of these will be Marian Lawrence, of Chicago, who is known as "the biggest Sunday school man in the world." He is a peerless orator. In his earlier years he was a commercial traveler, and it was while on the road as such that "he learned to talk." He has been in the Sunday school work now for many years. For twenty-eight years he was superintendent of the Sunday school of the Congregational church at Toledo, Ohio; for ten years general secretary of the Ohio Sunday School association, and for six years of the International Sunday School association.

Other speakers will be Dr. Cornelius Woolfkin, of Rochester, N. Y., a great educator and Sunday school worker; Dr. Milton S. Littlefield, of New York city; Rev. W. A. Brown, of Chicago; W. G. Hall, of Indianapolis, president of the Indiana association; Miss Hazel A. Lewis, of Indianapolis, the state superintendent of the elementary department of the Indiana work; Dr. McElfresh, an orator of national repute, and Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick, of Corinth, Miss., a distinguished woman orator and famed Sunday school worker.

Miss Kilpatrick has charge as teacher of the men's Bible class in one of the churches in Corinth, the largest Bible class in the southern states. She is the field worker of the Sunday school association for Mississippi. Miss Kilpatrick has an interesting message to give to her audiences and her addresses will be among the best of the convention.

In charge of the music at the convention will be Prof. O. E. Excell, of Chicago, a publisher of music and author of some of the best song books. He is a great singer and musical director. The accompanist at the piano will be Prof. Roper, of Lima, Ohio. The music of the convention will be an interesting feature.

The Convention Parade.

Arrangements are in preparation to make Saturday one of the big days of the convention. While delegates and visitors from the different townships of the county will be here each day, more will be in the city on Saturday than any other day. On the evening of that day there will be a great parade of men, marching through the streets, with two or three hundred men on horseback. Rev. P. J. Alberthus, of the Christ Lutheran church, is the chairman of the committee in charge of this feature, and this is the circular letter he has sent to the different townships and to the schools in the city:

"Mr. A. P. Cornelius, the state superintendent of the adult department, assures me that the number of men at the state convention to be held here will be larger than have attended any previous convention. The street parade of Saturday will be a great feature. It will be led by the Packard band, one of the greatest bands in the state, and in the parade bands from other cities and towns can also march.

"As we march through the streets we will sing 'Onward, Christian Soldiers,' 'Where He Leads Me I Will Follow,' 'I Love Him' (sung to 'Old Black Joe'). By special permission we will permit the men of the same Sunday school in Fort Wayne to march under the banner of the largest class of that school, and in that manner give the smaller classes a chance to win the flag. The men from the country will march under the banner of their respective townships.

"Get your banner ready in time. Don't forget to get your torches and torchbearers. If you can get up a drum corps, do so and have it march in the lead of your class or township.

"P. J. ALBERTHUS,
"Chairman of the Parade."

Two great meetings will be held Saturday evening after the parade, one for men only at the First Presbyterian church, and the other a general meeting at the First Baptist church.

The delegates and visitors at the convention pay for their own entertainment while in the city and the committee in charge of this department, of which Dr. M. A. Mason is in charge, says that not enough homes have yet been secured for this purpose.

The Official Program.

Rev. P. J. Alberthus, the president of the County Sunday School association, and Dr. M. A. Mason, the secretary of the city association, have received the official program of the convention, which is as follows:

HERE ARE TWO SIMPLE TRICKS.

Many travelers have visited India for the purpose of studying and learning the occult art of the Hindu magicians, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. The mango trick has become quite famous. The mango is an Indian fruit, something in the shape of the American pear. The mango trick may be described as follows:

A Hindu magician may walk into a room where an audience of thirty or forty people are assembled; he will call for some earth, which anyone may procure and place before him. He will take a seed of the mango, and, covering it up with the earth, place a sheet over the whole. He will then call one of the audience to lift up the sheet, when there will be seen a small sprout budding forth. Presently it grows into a tree, and at last bears fruit, of which the magician plucks one and offers to any person present to eat.

A Hindu magician will stand in the open field in the city of Calcutta, and, when surrounded by quite a crowd, will imitate the cries of birds, and very soon different varieties of birds, coming from every direction, will hover at a height above him and fly round his person.

The description of the first operation under ether in Europe, as given by Dr. F. William Cook in the University College Hospital Magazine, is reproduced in the current number of the Lancet, and the scene is referred to as the "most dramatic ever enacted in which medical men grouped the stage." The operation was performed by Robert Liston, December 21, 1846. "At 2:15 Liston enters; that magnificent figure of a man, six feet two inches in height, and says: 'We are going to try a Yankee dodge today, gentlemen, for making men insensible'—so Liston introduced ether to a London hospital." The subject was a man thirty-six years old, whose thigh was amputated. The operation was successful and Liston uttered the epilogue: "This Yankee dodge, gentlemen, beats mesmerism holler."

It has taken sixty years to explore completely the great Benue river, the principal tributary of the Niger. According to the bulletin of the American Geographical society, the last unknown stretch of the river has been surveyed by Captain Strumpel, in charge of German interests at Adamaua, Kamerun. Flegel discovered the headwaters of the Benue north of Ngaundere in 1882, and in 1893 Passarge extended the survey up the river from Garua to Bubandjika. Strumpel has surveyed the stream between its headwaters and Passarges farthest.

WACKER HAS CLEAR RECORD FOR HIS GAMES ON LOCAL GROUNDS

Pitched for First Time Since 1908 and Won Handily in a Game in Which Werder Was Badly Slaughtered in Third Inning.

Charles Wacker, who was always known as Demon Jimmy until he broke into the American association, where his real name was made public, has a clear record of victories on the Fort Wayne grounds, counting one yesterday in which his Dayton pards slaughtered Herman Werder in the third inning and amassed a lead that Fort Wayne never had a chance to overcome and which went to the Vets' string of games won by a score of 10 to 3.

The aforesaid Wacker debutted here as a member of Charles Punch Knoll's champion Evansville troupe in 1908 and pitched three games during the season, and in each event he triumphed. The following year he pitched with indifferent success for the Milwaukee team and last season Knoll added him to his Dayton staff.

He didn't show here during 1910, as his arm went bad on him and his performance in the millinery sketch was his first since he aided Evansville in capturing a gonfalon. He got by in excellent shape yesterday and in only one inning did Fort Wayne get to him, and a couple of fielding foozles by his support were responsible for the three tallies accumulated by the home crowd.

Connie Mack's phenom started in grand style and gave promise of doing a tough battle with his portside opposition, but his foot slipped in the third and before he had been derricked seven runs had been scored against him and the combat was practically lost.

Harry Corns succeeded him and pitched good ball with the exception of the sixth and ninth innings. His trouble in the sixth was due to passes to Dobard, Wacker and Kirkpatrick, between which Konnick and Benson sandwiched a pair of singles that netted as many runs. In the ninth Benson hit and was moved up on a bunt, and then Aristo DeHaven slammed the ball to right center for a drive on which he should have been halted at second, but Young failed to back Blount up when he made a hard run for the ball and the blow went for a triple.

Bill Clancy made his first appearance as a local first sacker, and while his work on the bag was all right, Wacker had him on his wagon all during the contest and he didn't register a safe drive.

Mike Konnick, who would have been a Fort Wayne player if the Cincinnati management had kept a promise made Claude Varnell in 1910, started trouble with one down in the awful third, when he reached way over on the outside corner and caught a shoot for a drive down third base line.

This upset Werder and he passed Wacker, and Kirkpatrick beat out an infield bounder, filling the bags. Elmer Benson picked off a single to left, and after Spencer had been retired on a play that permitted Wacker to score, Knoll hit a line drive over Keener's head that went to the fence and scored Kirkpatrick and Benson. DeHaven followed with a single and Werder uncorked a wild heave that allowed Knoll to score, and Don Cameron kicked in a double, to which Dobard added a hit of the same brand, and two more runs were registered, giving a total of seven for the round.

Fort Wayne's cluster of markers were all garnered in the sixth. Harry Corns whiffed and Blount beat a bunt down third base line, taking an extra base on Kirkpatrick's throw to the bleacher fence. Vandagrift popped to third, Keener got a pass and Young hit, sending Blount over. Benson tossed Clancy's offering to center field in an effort to force Young at second, and Keener counted, and the other runners took an extra base. Casey hit to left and DeHaven fumbled the ball, permitting Young to score and Clancy to reach third. Eddie Justice closed the rally by popping a fly that Dobard nailed.

Notes of the Games.

Vandagrift caught Kirkpatrick flat-footed in the second and beat out a bunt.

Keener lost a chance to get on in the seventh when he failed to run after the had missed the third strike. The ball got past Konnick and the batter was caught at first when he could have beaten the throw if he had started in time.

Knoll has by far the best ball team that has shown here this season, and if he has good luck he ought to be a contender for the flag the rest of the season.

Elmer Benson did a fine piece of fielding when he ran over back of first and nailed Curly Blount's drive in the third and retired his man.

Blount robbed Knoll of a hit when he loped over into left center and picked a line drive off his shoe tops in the fifth.

Mike Konnick signaled Dobard for a double steal in the sixth, but the shortstop didn't get it and when Konnick went to second he found the ball waiting for him. Dobard made no attempt to score. Onslow's throw on the play was perfect.

Dr. Casey made a hard run for Cameron's foul fly in the seventh and picked it off the grandstand.

Wacker, who has been known as a dangerous man at bat, had a queer record. He was passed twice and struck out a couple of times.

ZANESVILLE GETS INFIELDER

Nick Kahl Will Probably Be Let Out If New Man Shows Up.

Zanesville, O., June 3.—Announcement has been made by the local club owners of the purchase of infielder Blake from the Lancaster team of the Ohio State league. He was drafted by the St. Louis Americans last fall and made the spring training trip but was not needed and was sent back for more seasoning. This means that Nick Kahl will probably be dropped if the new man shows any form.

TWO OF LOCALS' BATTERY SQUAD

CHARLIE ALBERTS

BILL BAILEY.

Here are two of Fort Wayne's reliable battery men snapped by Photographer Miner while they were in action. Bailey has not had much work behind the bat this season, but he has been at first base for some time in the absence of McLafferty and he shows real class at the initial turn. Eddie Wheeler wanted to trade "Tex" Meyers for him but Manager James Casey didn't think well of the proposition and he turned it down in a jiffy.

Bailey was bought early last season from Grand Rapids and was first catcher last year. He had two or three understudies during the year but worked in the majority of the games.

Charlie Alberts has been on the pitching staff for several years and has been working hard but his work is a bit erratic although he is always in condition and is ready to give the club the best brand of hurling there is in him. He is the head of a thriving family and his pitching this year has been better than it was last.

PARKER HAS THE SAME OLD STORY

Grand Rapids on the Pork Train and May Play Series Here.

MONEY IS MISSING

[Special to The Sentinel.]

South Bend, Ind., June 3.—Dr. Harley Parker, owner of the Grand Rapids baseball team, failed to return today from Chicago where he went yesterday to see if he could raise the funds to put his team on its feet and in the meantime the Central league is carrying the club and is ready to place it in some other city if a good offer is received.

In an interview today Dr. Carson said: "I don't know what will be done until we have a meeting but for the next eight days it is likely that Grand Rapids will be played on the road, going from here to Fort Wayne on Monday for four days and from there to Dayton and in the meantime the directors can decide what action to take.

"The club has been drawing well at home and there ought to be some money in the treasury and I am sure I can't tell where it has all gone. The Three-I league is in bad shape on account of internal dissention and a late start and possibly one of the best towns on the circuit may be added to the Central league. Now, this is mere speculation and I am not giving this out for a certainty because the directors of the league may take an entirely different view of the situation.

"This league is paying too much salary and it can't make baseball pay at the rate it is going now. There's where the principal trouble lies and it will have to be corrected in some way. There will be no trouble placing Grand Rapids and it may be that Parker will get his money and square things all up. Until this meeting has been held I will not know a thing but something will be done before Monday morning.

Salaries for the last half of May have not been paid by the Grand Rapids management and this amounts to about $1,800. The club is also in debt $500 to the Pittsburg club for the purchase of Catcher Martin and $200 is due the O.-P. league for the services of Dolly Gray.

An effort was made several days ago to finance the club by the organization of a stock company but failure to dispose of the stock offered put this plan to the bad and there seems no inclination among the Grand Rapids people to take hold. Dr. Carson said he did not know whether Bert Annis would buy the team again or not but stated that he had rather make some other arrangement and while he did not openly say he was watching the Three-I organization he indicated that there might be some developments there in the next few days that would straighten out the tangle.

As a matter of fact Grand Rapids has been a hoodoo town for the Central league. The first club placed there finished the season on the road. Phil Arnold and Charlie Brotherton blew up and with the exception of two years when John Ganzel managed baseball affairs there the city had been a thorn in the side of the league.

SAMPLE CAN NOT PLAY THE FIELD

Inclination to Sneeze Endangers His Head in Outfield.

IS A BIG HANDICAP

Guy Sample, third catcher and general utility man on the Dayton staff stands ready to pitch, go behind the bat, play first or any of the other places on the infield, but when it comes to the outposts he has to renege.

This brings to light a queer condition. When Sample looks up at the sky with the sun shining he has to sneeze and he has to do it right off the reel, baseball or no baseball. He has a thin membrane or something like that up inside his nasal structure and just as soon as the sun gets into his eyes he sneezes.

Just suppose for instance there were three men on, two runs needed to win and Sample playing in the outfield. Suppose further the batter should land for a high fly with two gone and Sample had to stop to sneeze before he could catch the ball. It would cause a riot, so he has never attempted it.

There is just another thing to be considered. Guy has a pretty wise baseball head on his shoulders and he wants to keep it there and in good working order just as long as it will earn him a comfortable living at the national sport.

This dome of thought would be in great danger in the outfield if he should make any attempt to break in the suburbs as a fly ball would be mighty apt to cave in the top some time or other and put him out of business entirely.

Guy Sample is one of the men in the game who has given it his best services and although he has never been one of its bright stars he is a mighty useful man for any club because he can train the youngsters in the way they ought to play base ball, he is affable and a good coacher and all of these things combined to get him a position with Dayton this season when a younger utility player could have as easily been picked up.

STOGIES ALL IN LINE ONCE MORE

Regular Team Gives the Potters Another Good Trimming.

VETERANS IN LEAD

Roy Montgomery has his entire outfit in the field at Wheeling once more and it is in excellent working order, as it gave Zanesville a good lacing with "Lefty" Rogers, one of Mr. Reidy's most proficient hurlers, doing mound duty.

In the meantime Beatty, the speed king of the Stogie band, was getting his pretty regularly and an even dozen hits were gleaned by the Potters and of these three were triples and one was a double, but gilt-edged support kept the Smokes in the lead all the time. Rogers allowed only one more hit than his opponent, but he was hit when hits meant runs and this lost him the game. Montgomery and Knisely, who have been out with injuries, are back in the game and Tony Crane, who played first when the club was in Fort Wayne, has been sent over as a running mate to Tony Fremer at Waterloo, Iowa. This little courtesy on the part of Montgomery not only gave his club a rise above the cellar position, but shoved Dayton to the top round of the percentage ladder.

Donovan hit for a home run in the game at Terre Haute and this lead of one run held good over the Tots until the seventh, when the infield went to pieces behind Tom Cantwell and the home guard captured two runs, to which one was added in the eighth to make it safe. Eddie Wheeler shook up his team and it played errorless ball.

Dave Martin was not hit hard in the game at South Bend, but enough of the six safe drives made by Grand Rapids were bunched in the ninth inning to score two runs and win the game. Goldrick held the Benders to three hits and the victory gave Grand Rapids a berth in the first division.

FINAL GAME FOR SERIES AT HOME

Dayton Will Close Its Engagement Here Tomorrow Afternoon.

MAY USE VALLIERE

Manager James Casey is grooming his squad for the final go with the Dayton team tomorrow afternoon and he will use Pitcher Valliere, who has been bought from Kalamazoo, if he shows up in time and is fit to go in.

This is not a promise but just a possibility. The management has had such bad luck with its pitching purchases that it never counts on a man until he is on the lot and in uniform but the doctor knew of nothing today that would prevent the coming of Valliere and if he is here he will be used. If he is not here one of the other members of the staff will be sent in for the blow off.

Dayton has a ball team this season and it is the class of all the clubs that have been here this year. Manager Punch Knoll is of the hustling variety and he has a band of scrappy players behind him and they get in and out of their positions between innings like they meant business and this enabled them to play sixteen innings in three hours. Although there was an inning yesterday in which the hits and passes came without a breathing spell between them the contest was tied in an hour and three quarters.

Fort Wayne has a club that is just as good as the Veteran outfit with the single exception of the pitching staff. Dayton may be a bit stronger at bat but it is not a bit stronger in team play and there is sure to be a battle every time the clubs meet. In Compton, Asher, Wacker, Summers, Winchell Dayton has five pitchers in good condition and all good men and this is the one thing that has placed the club at the top of the heap.

Rain this forenoon made it possible that the game this afternoon would have to be postponed and arrangements were made to pull off a double bill tomorrow beginning at 2 o'clock. If it is not necessary to play two games the one will be called at 3.

Manager Casey is still on a hunt for pitchers and will land them if they are to be found but he said today that he had exhausted all this resources and knew of nothing that promised anything.

ANNIS BUYS NEW MAN FOR BRONCS

Catcher Ray Scanlon Purchased from the Denver Management.

ESSICK ON GROUND

South Bend, Ind., June 3.—Owner Bert Annis announced today the purchase of Catcher Ray Scanlon from the Denver team and the club has a new battery for the home series as Pitcher Essick has come to terms and will be given a chance to show.

A deal is on for Harry Welchonce, recently placed on the market by the Philadelphia club, and if he can be secured Manager Ed Smith thinks he will be ready to get into the Central league race and make a fight for a position in the first division.

Midge Craven, who was put into the game because none of the other men tried at the post were showing better form, has recovered from an attack of rheumatism that slowed him up on the base lines and he is now playing good ball. Alva Holt, held as second catcher on the club and tried in the outfield, will be disposed of as soon as Scanlon reports to relieve Holmes of part of the work behind the bat.

The new catcher is a Notre Dame player and was sent out to the Denver club by the Philadelphia Nationals. Pitcher Camnitz, obtained from the Pittsburg club for a try-out and who lost both of the games in which he pitched, has been released and will return to the Pirate team in event Manager Fred Clarke wants to keep him.

He wanted another trial as he believed he could pitch better ball his next time out but as soon as Essick was secured he was let go as it was no time to take a chance with the Pittsburg man.

MUST CUT SALARY LIMIT.

South Bend, Ind., June 3.—"The Central league will either adopt a $1,500 salary limit next year or elect a new president." That is the ultimatum of Dr. F. R. Carson, the circuit's leader, announced this morning.

At the present there is no limit recognized and some players are receiving almost twice as much as others, while the pay roll of a few of the clubs runs much past $1,500.

"It is exorbitant salaries that break up leagues," says President Carson, "and there is no reason why an organization like the Central should not exist with the barrier at $1,500."

MAY GET ROBBIE YET.

Columbus, O., June 3.—Outfielder Hoffman joined Indianapolis here today. Pitcher White came yesterday. McCarty will now become regular catcher and Joe McCarty utility man.

Burke claims every club is still in the race and believes his Indians have struck their stride.

They're good, Gold Seals, 5c Cigars. 29-6t

TWO SIGNALS FOR THE BATTERY

New York, June 3.—Russell Ford, 33d degree spitball flinger, and his backstop, Ed Sweeney, use but two signs, yet the Yankees' star twirler throws 14 separate and distinct balls. With any other man catching him, Ford has to signal just how every ball is going to break, and this puts him to a disadvantage. And here is why:

He holds the ball in his hand the same for every delivery, no matter whether it is going to be a sharp breaking spitter or a raising hop ball. It all depends upon the position of the batter at the plate with Ford, and as he winds up, the man with the willow is likely to shift slightly from the attitude he struck before he sets himself in motion.

It is then that Ford may be forced to shift from an "in" breaking spitter to an "out" breaking one or something else. He is forced to shift on the instant and, of course, has no time to stop and resignal his backstop. If he did, it would be a deliberate balk. Therefore, it is up to Sweeney, like the batter, to guess what kind of a ball Ford is going to dish up.

And that is what makes Sweeney the great catcher he is. He usually figures out what his teammate is going to pitch, but when he dopes them wrong his wonderfully long reach, fast-moving pedals and quick working think-tank combined, nearly always finds him with his mitt in front of the ball.

Fans have criticised Sweeney's backstopping of Ford at times. But if they only half realized the energy and work that it takes to hold the spitball artist properly, they would be singing his praise instead. As Ford says himself:

"Sweeney does a whole week's work when he catches me one game. And when I am a bit off and inclined to be wild, Ed does a month's work in one afternoon."

LITTLE BITS OF SPORT CHATTER

Runt Walsh, star third sacker of the Bronchos in 1909, is playing right field. Runt will be remembered as a great fielder.

Joe Herold, last year with Zanesville, was injured while playing with the Newark team Monday and will be out of the game for several weeks.

Leonard Dobard is one of the few ball players who hits and fields better on the road than he does at home. He is putting up a nice game at short for the Dayton team.

A daughter arrived at the home of Tyrus Raymond Cobb yesterday. The child is the second born to Mr. and Mrs. Cobb. The first born is a boy. The baby girl weighs eight pounds.

When the Dayton team gets to Grand Rapids it will find some old pards in Harry Martin, Steve Ragan, Ray Hale, John Core and Jack Pendry, all of whom wore Vet uniforms at one time.

Heinie Deiters, former Zanesville third baseman, has been released by the Steubenville team of the O. & P. league. Fred Graf, Stogie try-out, will take his place. Pitcher Troy has also been sent to Steubenville by Manager Montgomery.

The Terre Haute team has been asked to put in a bid for the services of John Somerlott and he may be back at first for the Tots before the ring.

Joe Sugden has tendered his resignation as manager of the New Castle O. and P. league team. It was accepted. Sugden quits because the Nocks have been going badly. He hasn't been satisfied for some time and tried to quit several days ago.

Someone asked Chief Meyers, the Indian catcher of the Giants, what he thought of Umpire Finneran. Meyers replied that the only league the umps ought to be allowed to officite in is "one of those 20,000 leagues under the sea."

Paul Cobb, brother of the famous Tyrus, will very likely be a member of the Washington Nationals before the end of the present season. Paul is now playing right field for the Lincoln team of the Western league and his hitting is such that it is attracting wide attention.

When Knock Out Brown and Tommy Murphy fought recently Murphy refused to go on until $3,000 had been placed in his hands. Brown's manager, Danny Morgan, drew the money out of the bank and gave it to Murphy. The purse amounted to $3,200, leaving Brown but $200 for knocking Murphy out. Brown said it was worth $3,000 to get Murphy into the ring.

OLD TIMER LET GO.

James "Lil" Sager is Out After Seven Years in Harness.

Evansville, Ind., June 3.—James "Lil" Sager, who had been playing ball in the Central league since it was organized seven years ago, has been given his unconditional release by Manager Aggie Grant and he will go to the Blue Grass league in Kentucky.

Sager played more games in the Central league than any other man who ever played in the organization and for five years he didn't miss a single contest. This leaves only two players in the league who started with it and both of them are here—Manager Grant and George Tieman.

NOTED LIGHTING EXPERT COMING

W. D. A. Ryan to Give Lecture at Commercial Club.

BROUGHT HERE BY Ft. WAYNE A. I. E. E.

Master Car Builders Preparing to Hold Annual Convention.

The lecture at the Commercial club next Monday night on the subject of "Modern Illumination" by W. D. A. Ryan, of Schenectady, N. Y., is considered by the Fort Wayne section of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers as the best they ever offered in Fort Wayne. Mr. Ryan will use stereopticon views to emphasize the main features of his address. The members ofthe Commercial club, the Electro-Technic club, the Merchants' association, the Fort Wayne Transportation association and manufacturers generally have been invited to the lecture and many will be present.

Mr. Ryan is the illuminating engineer of the General Electrical company and in that line he is said to have no superior in the world. He is a graduate ofthe Canadian Royal School of Cavalry and went direct from the institution to the employ of the Thomson-Houston company, at Lynn nineteen years ago. In those days electric illumination was not well understood and in a very unsatisfactory state. No one knew how much light a lamp gave nor the effect of different reflector equipments and in his researches Mr. Ryan was the first to suggest the systematic collection of light measurements. By means of photometers and other instruments, many of which were designed by him, he obtained extremely interesting results in industrial, mercantile and street lighting and demonstrated the value of proper color and diffusion of light.

W. D. A. RYAN,
Noted Lighting Expert, Who Lectures Here Monday.

While the great illuminating engineering movement could not have been produced by one man, undoubtedly to Mr. Ryan more than any other individual is the credit due. In recognition of his services the General Electric company appointed him its illuminating engineer, he being the first upon whom such a title was conferred.

Illuminating engineering is now a recognized science and art, with a national association and publication of its own.

Many noteworthy lighting installations bear witness to his ingenuity and skill, not to mention the thousands in which others have applied the ideas freely suggested by him.

Mr. Ryan's workshop is now the illuminating engineering laboratory of the General Electric company in Schenectady. Here, with a floor space of approximately 9,000 square feet and a trained force of engineers, he is directing his energies toward the perfection of artificial illumination, not alone fromthe standpoint of economy and efficiency, but the proper application of the different lighting units for the considerations under which they are to be used.

MEET AT ATLANTIC CITY.

Master Car Builders and Master Mechanics' Association.

The annual conventions of the Master Car Builders and the Master Mechanics' association will again be held at Atlantic City this year, commencing Wednesday, June 14, and continuing about ten days. Fort Wayne people who have already made up their minds to attend the meeting are Motive Power Supt. T. W. Demarest, Chief Clerk W. L. Wiit and Chief Car Inspector Adam LaMar, of the Pennsylvania, and R. J. Fisher, of the Bass Foundry and Machine company. They will leave for the east one week from next Tuesday.

WABASH EMPLOYES' EXCURSION.

William H. Shorey, agent of the Wabash, has been advised of the date of the annual excursion of the employes to Detroit, which as usual will be open to the public generally. Reservations have been made for equipment sufficient to handle 1,500 people. Last year over 1,200 took in this excursion and many more would have enjoyed it had the equipment been sufficient. On the same day the Relief Union of the Fort Wayne Electric works took 1,800 people to Cedar Point. The Wabash excursion this year, which will be by rail to Toledo and boat to Detroit, will be on Saturday, July 29.

GOING TO ANNUAL MEETING.

For the past two or three days there has been a heavy movement of delegates to the annual convention of the Church of Brethren at St. Joseph, Mo. Yesterday the Pennsylvania had a train load of these people through the city and the Nickel Plate had a car load of them, mostly from this neighborhood. Nineteen joined this party in this city. Traveling Passenger Agent F. P. Parnin accompanied them to Chicago.

NEW CROSSING WATCHMAN.

Capt. H. C. Stoll, who has charge of the crossing watchmen on the Pennsylvania, has installed James Tripp as watchman at the poor farm crossing in Whitley county. This crossing has been considered a dangerous one for some time and a number of accidents have occurred there. Tripp was formerly a section hand in that vicinity.

LOOKING AFTER MUSICIANS.

The Pennsylvania employes are going to take a cornet and a string band with them to pretty Maxinkuckee Monday, June 26, the day of the annual excursion. Boiler Foreman B. F. Sarver, who is chairman of the committee on music, announces that he is ready to receive bids from the several musical organizations in the city and is desirous of settling the matter as soon as possible. He wants all to send in a bid.

TAKES WORK IN CHICAGO.

H. F. Gustin, of New Orleans, is here to spend Sunday with his former shop associates and old friends. He has accepted a position with Fairbanks, Morris & Company, contracting electricians, and came this way en route to Chicago. Mr. Gustin took a student's course at the Fort Wayne Electric works, completing the term and going to New Orleans about six months ago.

CLOSED FOR INSPECTION.

In conformity with the regulations prescribed by the state, boiler inspection is in progress at the Pennsylvania shops today and as a result the planing mills and all of the big steam hammers in the blacksmith shop are idle. The men are taking a holiday, many of them having gone to the lakes.

EYES BADLY INJURED.

Machinist G. A. Lash, of the Pennsylvania erecting shop, has been compelled to forego the pleasure of a trip to Chicago, arranged for today. While at work yesterday he got his eyes filled with iron rust and the stuff was removed only with the greatest difficulty. Mr. Lash will be unable to work for several days.

BOILERS FOR NOTRE DAME.

The Bass company has received an order from the Notre Dame university at South Bend to build two tubular boilers eighteen feet long and six feet in diameter. They will be added to the power and lighting plant of the university.

TURNED OUT 12 ENGINES.

Twelve engines comprised the output from the Pennsylvania erecting shop during the week ending today, and each received general repairs. They were Nos. 7058, 7229, 748, 7470, 7482, 7707, 7783, 7933, 9209, 9373 and 9379.

OUT OF THE HOSPITAL.

James O'Leary, section foreman of the Pennsylvania in the city, left the St. Joseph hospital this morning. He had been there a number of weeks on account of an injured and diseased foot. Some of the bones of the member had to be removed.

GASH CUT IN CHEEK.

J. P. Lobbe, a pipefitter in the Pennsylvania shops, received an ugly cut in his right cheek, a short distance below the eye, when a pipe he was handling slipped and struck him. He is off duty as a result.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

C. Burkas has taken employment as a boilermaker's helper at the Bass shops.

Ensign George, of the Pennsylvania smith shop, is off duty on account of sickness in his family.

The Pennsylvania handled a special train and a lot of excursionists from Dunkirk to Ada this morning.

John Otis, of Huntington, inspected a lot of car supplies at the Bass foundry today for the Erie company.

The employes in the Wabash shops worked until noon today. Usually the shops are closed all of Saturday.

L. J. Stetter, who has been sick a week, will resume his work in the Pennsylvania tank shop next Monday.

William Heuer, a boilermaker, was at Decatur, Ind., yesterday making estimates upon some work on a boiler plant.

Erecting Engineer Herman Regel, of the Bass works, has gone to Tonawanda, N. Y., on business for the company.

Edward Richter, Peter Puluszek, Louis W. Miller, J. F. Hildinger and W. R. Densmore took employment at the Wabash shops this morning.

Henry Rohlman, the Pennsylvania coach painter who had his eyes injured ten days ago, has recovered and resumed his duties at the east car shops.

During a temporary shut-down of his steam hammer, Blacksmith Henry Tonsing and his gang at the Pennsylvania shops are fishing at Rome City.

Two Wabash train crews have been count of slack business. The conductors set beck are George Grice and Charles Pierce.

General Manager J. B. Yohe, of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie road, and a party of friends occupied a private car on Pennsylvania train No. 9, en route from Pittsburg to Chicago.

Chief Draughtsman H. S. Borhek, of the Pennsylvania master mechanic's office, received a message yesterday announcing the death of an aunt at Bethlehem, Pa. He left last night for that city.

A. J. Kays, formerly yardmaster for the Wabash at Peru, and later the C., C. & L., has gone to Hamilton, Canada, to accept a position as yardmaster for the Grand Trunk railroad at that point.

The Wabash will bring down an excursion party from Toledo and intermediate points tomorrow, the first of the season. If this excursion is well patronized the company will run others every alternate Sunday.

E. G. Berling has gone to Decatur, Ind., to engage in business with his brother. He resigned a clerical position at the Pennsylvania trainmaster's office for this purpose, the change being made on account of indoor work being injurious to his health.

Harry Tucker, a construction man traveling out of New York for the Fort Wayne Electric works, is visiting friends in the city. He will go to Madison, Wis., on business for the company next week. Mr. Tucker was employed in the local shops several years.

No. 232, Carpenters and Joiners' union, will elect its officers for the ensuing six months at the meeting next Thursday evening. The union has decided to continue its low initiation fee another month. At the last meeting the union added twenty-three names to its membership roll.

The Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg during April had a total operating revenue of $8,152,669, a decrease of $165,333, and net operating revenue $2,127,711, an increase of $764,872. From January 1 the total operating revenue was $32,158,753, a decrease of $2,797,690, and the net operating revenue $6,289,865, a decrease of $915,000.

For the next two weeks Joseph Lamboley, traffic manager of the Fort Wayne Electric works, will be a horny handed tiller of the soil, much of the time being spent in plowing corn, potatoes and other growing crops. Mr. Lamboley resides on a tract of land known as "Glendale Acres," just west of the city and he will spend his annual vacation there.

When a passenger train on the Wabash was stopped at Boody Monday to repair the brake rigging on the engine tender, the conductor of the train discovered that the front trucks of the mail car were broken and would not have held together long. The car was set out on a siding before the train proceeded. Had the condition of the trucks remained unnoticed a wreck which might have been attended by great loss of life would have followed.

All contracts for the construction of sixty-eight miles of track from Carlisle to Allerton, Iowa, which will complete the Rock Island's short line from Kansas City, Mo., to St. Paul, have been let. Work will be started at once, and it is hoped to have the line ready for operation early in the summer of 1912. When completed this line will give the Rock Island a route fifty miles shorter than any other road between St. Paul and Des Moines, Iowa. It will also open up a rich coal field, and will be a heavy traffic producer from the day of its opening.

Are You Parting Your Hair, Or Is Your Hair Departing?

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Saves the Parting by Checking the Departing

Watch the part. It is there that approaching baldness is often first detected. The parting looks uneven, unhealthy. The white streak is gradually growing wider. You may not notice this from day to day but watch the parting from month to month. As further evidence of what is happening look at your brush or comb. It is clogged with dead hair and dandruff after every combing. The hair is gradually dying and coming out and the streak is becoming daily a little wider.

The dandruff germ is doing this and the work of destruction cannot be checked until the dandruff is eradicated and the germ destroyed. It is a condition requiring the prompt and intelligent use of Newbro's Herpicide, if total baldness is to be escaped. The invisible microbic growth never halts in the hair killing process. In a short time a bare spot is seen at the crown of the head. The hair bulbs are robbed of life and finally there is no help but a wig. Don't wait. Herpicide kills the germ, gives life and vigor to the hair and prevents it from departing.

A Word To The Ladies

Beautiful hair is the greatest source of feminine attractiveness and its departing is a calamity. Newbro's Herpicide gives the hair life, luster and luxuriance and keeps it from coming out. Used regularly this exquisite toilet requisite makes the hair light, fluffy and easy to manage.

HEALTH

Is Life's Greatest Asset

Special Offer Until June 15

Others Treat — I Cure

CURES AT YOUR OWN PRICE—Every person who calls on me before June 15 will not only receive a careful and thorough examination FREE OF CHARGE, but absolutely no fee will be charged during that time other than you yourself are willing to pay.

ARE YOU SATISFIED WITH THE CONDITION YOU ARE IN, OR DO YOU WANT TO GET WELL? DO YOU WANT TO KNOW JUST WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH YOU? If you do you should get the benefit of experience, unless you are satisfied to pay for experiments, and at the end find out that you are out your money, and your health is worse than before you began. I have made a special study of PELVIC, NERVOUS and CHRONIC DISEASES for over fifteen years and have perfected methods that cure where the ordinary methods fail.

LIFE IS TOO SHORT and HEALTH IS TOO PRECIOUS to experiment with, therefore, it behooves you to go to one who is thoroughly capable, and who, by his many years of successful experience, is the most able to CURE you. The best, while probably costing a little more money, is always the cheapest—and where such an important matter as LIFE and HEALTH is concerned it is the utmost folly to accept anything but the BEST.

When the hearse backs up to your door it is then too late and your money will avail you not. Do you not think that that is a big price to pay for folly? Do you not think that it is much wiser to rid yourself of disease and enjoy life and health? Now is the time to make the start before it is everlastingly too late. WHEN YOU MAKE THE START, MAKE IT RIGHT.

The hundreds of letters from satisfied patients that I have in my office, backed up by sworn statements, ought to appeal to you if you value your health. These are not from people who live far away, but prominent persons living in and around Fort Wayne, and many of whom You are probably well acquainted with.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN and nearly all nervous diseases are the result of CHRONIC or imperfectly treated PELVIC DISEASES. My special methods of treatment not only quickly and permanently relieve the most distressing symptoms, but restore to a NORMAL and HEALTHY condition the broken down and devitalized nervous system.

EXAMINATION—My facilities for examination are unexcelled. I learn the exact condition of the rectum, bladder and every organ of the genito-urinary system. This in itself is of the highest importance, inasmuch as a broken down nervous system and many more of the troubles of the STOMACH, LIVER, KIDNEYS, etc., are reflex, and are the direct result of some pelvic lesion or disease.

BLOOD POISON—I use serums and vegetable drugs in the treatment of blood poison. Mercury and mineral poison have ruined many a man. My treatment eliminates the poison in half the time of the old methods and leaves the blood and tissues free from any taint of disease.

RUPTURE—I cure rupture in a few treatments without the use of the knife, without pain and without loss of time.

VARICOCELE, STRICTURE, PILES, FISTULA, etc., quickly and permanently cured without the knife and without detention from business.

PROSTATIC ENLARGEMENT—Hundreds of men in every community are suffering untold humiliation and torture from pain and non-retention of urine simply because they have not been able to obtain relief from this most distressing condition. You cannot afford to neglect yourself, either as a matter of business or personal comfort. My many testimonials prove the efficacy of my method. I reduce the enlargement and have been able to cure fully 90 per cent of all cases.

The Bondage of Fear

A Sermon by REV. HUGH BLACK, D. D.

Text—Ps. 56:3: "What time I am agraid, I will trust in thee."

Dr. Black is professor of practical theology in Union Theological Seminary, New York. This sermon is reprinted from the Christian Herald.

The keynote of this song, at once so plaintive and so confident, is trust in God. The writer states a hard case, with dangers without and fears within; but the ultimate issue is the triumph of faith. He is hard bestead, worn out, beaten and broken, hemmed in by enemies as in a circle of steel, till his heart almost fails and his courage droops. The Psalm begins with a cry for pity: "Be merciful unto me, O God; for man crusheth me; all day fighting, he oppresseth me." The crushing suggests some cruel, heartless treatment. "All day mine enemies crush me; yea, many are they that haughtily fight against me." But the Psalmist recollects himself, or rather he recollects God; and in the recollection he strikes a note that drowns the low, plantive melody of the first verses. "In the day when I am afraid, I will trust in thee." In one moment he lays hold of something of the undaunted courage of faith.

Faith and Fear.

Faith is often spoken of as if it were a weak thing, of a pulling, whining nature; as if it were a kind of cowardice that runs to cover as an escape. That is a misrepresentation. From one aspect faith is simply courage; moral courage, that will not give in, that refuses to be beaten, that will not doubt the love of God though everything seems against believing. In the day when I am afraid, when I have most cause to be afraid, I will trust in thee. When clouds are heaviest and despair is on the heart, faith clings tenaciously to God. The Psalmist will not be overmastered by his fears and coerced by his dangers; for instinctively such a courageous soul feels that "sudden the worst turns the best to the brave." "In God have I put my trust; I will not be afraid; what can flesh do unto me?" The fear comes back and floods his life again; for the trouble is still there. But he never is quite engulfed, and there breaks out the same refrain of trust in God: "I will not be afraid."

Life still knows the menace of fear, though the forms of it may have changed. Every life has its troubles without and fears within, its dark moments, its difficult passes, its dangers and distresses. Men live in the shadow, oppressed with care and anxiety burdened with loads too heavy, harassed with fears and doubts. The bondage of fear has been the weariest slavery of the race. It has its roots no doubt in sin, though we cannot trace definite connections in particular cases. Fear entered Eden when sin entered. "They heard the voice of the Lord God, and Adam and his wife hid themselves. And the Lord God called unto Adam and said, Where art thou? And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid." Fear has gripped man and held him in spiritual tyranny. Men have been afraid of life and of death, afraid of today and of tomorrow, afraid of the living and of the dead, afraid of man and of God, afraid of everything and of nothing. The primitive instinct of dread so forcibly described by Kipling has its abode still in life; in different forms, but none the less real.

"Through the Jungle very softly flits a shadow and a sigh—
He is Fear, O little Hunter; he is Fear!
Very softly down the glade runs a waiting, watching shade,
And the whisper spreads and widens far and near:
And the sweat is on thy brow, for ne passes even now—
He is Fear, O little Hunter; he is Fear!"

We say gaily that knowledge and the spread of education have killed fear. We point to superstitions, the dread of unknown powers, the terror of the unseen, which have been mitigated if not destroyed by knowledge. This is indeed so; and true knowledge is of God, for God is light, and in him is no darkness at all. But it is not true that fear is dead, or that mere knowledge ever can give it its quietus. Knowledge can only glean in the fields after the reapers. The mind of man can only set in terms of reason what the soul of man has discovered. Superstition is killed by faith. A false religion is displaced in the world not by criticism, but by a true religion. And it is not the case as a matter of fact that fear has ceased to be a bondage to men. To think so you must be ignorant of life; must have had your eyes shut to the hunted look on human faces; must never even have faced the specters of your own mind. There is ever a death's head at the world's feasts; and black care still rides behind many a horseman. It may be that we no longer tremble at mystery and bow down before the idols which represent the forces of nature; but have we solved the mystery? Has knowledge robbed life and destiny of their unknown elements? Philosophy can sometimes conquer the fear of life. A spurious peace can be got from forgetfulness of the problems of life; by shutting the eyes, or by hopeless acquiescence in the sordidness of existence. That sort of peace could always be got in that way.

With all our knowledge of natural forces and our command of material resources, life has still its appalling changes, its uncertainties. Men can still be mastered by an unspoken dread, a nameless terror. Are there no misgivings in men's minds, no heart-sinkings about the future, no distrust of self even, never an apprehension of evil, never a shiver at the possible? I speak not of the fear of death, though that must always be our portion; for the love of life is natural and therefore the fear of death is natural. It is only when the spirit is broken, when nerve is lost, when body or mind or heart is diseased, that death can ever seem a gain. And if in our modern world-weariness there is a school with their morbid high priests of literature and art who worship at the shrine of death and speak of it affectedly as our gentle mother, even that is but another proof of heart-sickness and the fear of life. Doubt is the disease of thought; and is twin-sister of fear. We may lay all the ghosts we can, go whistling to keep our courage up, to prove that there is nothing but shadows to frighten us. But the ghosts will not be laid. Fear clings to life, elusive as the mist on the mountains.

The Darkness of Fear.

Even when fear for self is beaten back from the gates, there remains for every true man fear of self. When we stop to think and look back on the past, we can be afraid of our own base impulses and cravings. We may well be afraid of our own weakness. It may be a wholesome fear, and be to us the mother of safety, as Burke called it. It may be one of the hounds of heaven to drive us from the wilderness into the fold.

Further, if self can be forgotten, as perhaps it can be, is there no fear for others in our hearts? Some of you have whispered with trembling lip in the sanctuary your fears for those you love. Perfect love casts out fear; and even our imperfect human love casts out fear of the loved, but not always fear for him. You would shield your loved ones and put protecting arms around them. Paul confesses the fear he had for some of his beloved converts lest they should be drawn away; and is not ashamed even to confess the fear which sometimes chilled his heart lest he himself might be a castaway. There are noble forms of fear, born of love itself. Job is depicted in all his happiness and prosperity rising up early in the morning to pray and make offerings for his sons and daughters; for Job said, "It may be that my sons have sinned and cursed God in their hearts." When the blow fell, he knew that he had been dreading something like this all his life. "The thing which I greatly feared is come upon me; and that which I was afraid of is come unto me."

Life is open to fear in other directions. Somewhere or other it can grip you by the throat; if not at this turn of the road, at the next possibly; if not in any of the places I have mentioned, yet at some spot, your heart knows where. There is fear we must all have known—if not, then be afraid of your own want of fear—the fear which sin always brings; to one, as with Macbeth, "the perilous stuff which weighs upon the heart" with its remorse and pain; to another, as with Gloster in King Henry VI, the "suspicion which always haunts the guilty mind."

Need I heap up more evidence? Need I speak of fears of the future, of the fears which find voice in our books about the forces at work in society with their possible social changes, of the natural timidity which looks with shrinking on new and untried paths? We speak glibly of this as a transition period. We perhaps believe that conditions more true and just may emerge; but everywhere you find men dreading the plunge, the passage through the cloud.

Fear is the sign of evil in this world; the symbol of the mystery of iniquity. We have all to meet it sooner or later in some form or other. It is the great bondage of the race. See it in the tired and startled eyes of men and women with care and anxiety marked on their brow. Life is often lived under a gray sky and on a sodden earth. The weight of tomorrow burdens today. The troubles of the future kill the joy of the present. It is no unique experience for a man to say, "What time I am afraid."

The Light of Faith.

We have seen that some of the causes of fear are the same as in the Psalmist's day. We look to see if the cure of fear is the same with us as with him. If we can say that the cause of our sickness of heart is doubt, doubt of self, of life, of God, the cure for it is faith. The owls and bats and dark night-birds that hoot in our ears are driven from us by one stroke of the flashing sword of the rising sun. As in all the great controversies in religion and life, the battle is fought out in the region of presupposition. That is why every controversy resolves itself into some ultimate and simple philosophy of life. So here, if we realize that God's love is the heart of the universe and the center of life, fear of all kinds must depart. In proportion as that creed is a living faith with us are all fears maimed or dispelled. If we accept that love, if we apply it to our every need, if we breathe in it, live in it, where is there room for fear? Want of faith in God means want of faith in human destiny, and the world becomes a riddle and life a terror. But faith in God, faith in the moral order of the universe and in the protecting love of the Father, saves from despair. In God there is no room for fear. "What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee."

This is not something to be argued about, but simply to be stated as experience, and to be tested experimentally. Living in the filial relationship with God in which Christ lived, we are emancipated. Christ's Gospel is the gospel of the grace of God, good news of great joy to the sorrowful, glad tidings to the sinful and fearful. "Fear not" was a word often on his lips. He comes today to bring men to God, bringing God with him: he comes over life's broken waters, making a great calm: "It is I, be not afraid." A touch of his hand quiets the fevered pulse; a look of his eye brings peace; a smile of his lips illumines the world. Christ's very presence in the world is a message of courage. Why are ye fearful, O ye of little faith? Look up to the bright light in the clouds. Ye are not unregarded. Life has a meaning. God has a purpose with you in your struggle and patience and loving service. Be of good cheer.

What is your fear? Of man? Put yourself on to the side of God; and then say, "The Lord is on my side; I will not fear; what can man do unto me?"

Do you fear sin and its power? Love's redemption will snatch you from the jaws of the dragon. Courage! Take heart of grace. "Sin shall not have dominion over you. Faith grips the quiver of trembling flesh with a strong hand. Christ transmutes fear into faith. The true fear of God kills all other fear, even the fear of self.

In the Shadow of the Almighty.

Are you afflicted with love's fear, for some you think of and pray for? Love more; love higher. There is no fear in love. The cloud of it passes away in the flood of sunshine from God's perfect love.

Do you fear for the world? It is God's world, and is the scene of his redemptive work.

Do you fear for the church, for the cause of truth and righteousness and peace? It is not for you to tremble for the ark of God. Truth is inviolable; love is invincible. God's will shall be done on earth, and his kingdom come—oppose it who dare. Fear not, O little flock; it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom. Lift up your face with the stain of tears and believe. Faith shall live; fear and all the dragon brood shall die. Be of good cheer; be not afraid. Take up the burden of your life again with comfort in your heart, and let Christ's peace rule within. "He that dwelleth in the secret place of the Most High shall abide under the shadow of the Almighty." "In the depths where no God is and no heart to love him, all sorrow lasteth long; on the heights of devotion we still have sorrows, only they are short. Just as the nights are longer in the valleys; but in the mountains they last not long, and a gleam of red showeth always where day has been, or is to be."

"What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee."

Love and Content

Oh, they that dwell in palaces and dine on dainty fare—
Their souls, sweetheart, are often steeped in darkness and despair;
For never yet the door was made, however richly wrought,
Could shut the hound of sorrow from the fated hearth he sought.
And never casement yet could lure, however wide and high,
The blessed beam of happiness from doom's relentless sky;
And oh, the sweetest, finest food on snowy table spread
Is only dust and ashes when the light of love is fled.

Oh, they that dwell in palaces, sweetheart, are often sad,
Because they've somehow missed the joy that makes our life so glad.
And oft, I ween, they'd barter dainty fare and lordly dome
To find the secret of the bliss that fills the lowly home.
For 'tisn't stately palaces all beautified by art,
And 'tisn't lavish luxury, can satisfy the heart;
And 'tisn't wine or wantonness can warm the spirit cold;
And 'tisn't wealth can buy the gift that's neither bought nor sold.

Oh, they that dwell in palaces the softest garments wear:
But oft the silken robe, sweetheart, is thickly lined with care:
And oft the shining jewel on the shapely arm or hand
Becomes a baser fetter than the convict's iron band.
So let me not be envious, sweetheart, of all their gear,
But prize the rarer, fairer gift I hold in you, my dear,
And thank the Gracious God who, though our lives were leagues apart,
Has brought us twain together, soul of soul and heart of heart.

The Feverish Hand.

By J. E. JEWETT.

It was a Monday morning, and a rainy one at that. Mother was busy from the moment she sprang out of bed at the first sound of the rising bell. Others besides children get out of bed on "the wrong side," as this mother can testify. She began by thinking over all that lay before her. It made her "feel like flying!" Bridget would be cross; as it was rainy there would be a chance of company for lunch, so the parlor must be tidied, as well as dining room swept, dishes washed, lamps trimmed, beds made and children started for school. Her hands grew hot as she buttered bread for luncheon, waited on those who had to start early, and tried to pacify the little ones and Bridget.

"My dear, you're feverish," said her husband, as he held her busy hands a moment. Let your work go and rest yourself; you'll find it pays."

"Just like a man," thought the mother. "Why, I haven't time even for my prayers!" But the little woman had resolved that she would read a few verses in her Bible before 10 o'clock each day, so, standing by her bureau, she opened to the 8th chapter of Matthew and read these words: "And he touched her hands, and the fever left her; and she arose, and ministered unto them."

It seemed to that busy wife as if Jesus himself stood ready to hear her—to take the fever out of her hands, that she might minister wisely to her dear ones. The beds could wait till later in the day—she must feel his touch. She knelt and he whispered, "My strength, not yours, child, is sufficient." "As thy days, so shall thy strength be." "My yoke is easy. This yoke you have been galled by is the world's yoke, the yoke of public opinion, of housewifely ambition; 'take my yoke upon you and learn me * * * ye shall find rest.'"

The day was no brighter, the work had still to be done; but the fever had left her, and all day she sang, "This God is our God, my Lord and my God."

It is true that, when the friends came to lunch, no fancy dishes had been prepared for the table, but the hostess' heart was filled with love for them, as members, with her, of Christ, and they went away hungering for such a realization of him as they saw she had.

"Ah," said her husband, when he held her hands once more, "I see you took my advice, dear; the fever is quite gone."

The wife hesitated. Could she tell her secret? Was it not almost too sacred? Yet—it was "the secret of the Lord," not hers, and would glorify him. Later on, when the two sat together, she told him who had cured her fever, and said, quietly, "I see that there is a more important ministry than the housekeeping, though I don't mean to neglect that."

"Let us ask the Lord to keep hold of our hands," said her husband. "Mine grow feverish in eager money-making, as yours in too eager housekeeping."

This is no fancy sketch. Dear mothers, busy and anxious housekeepers, let us go again and again to him that he may touch our hands, lest they be feverish, and so we can not minister, in the highest sence, to those about us.—Selected.

WHAT A GIRL MAKES HIM.

"Why did you give me such a look in the ice cream parlors yesterday, Miss Bertha?"

An eager-faced girl put the question to an older friend, who, as the most popular debutante of the season, was immensely admired by the school girls.

"Would you really like to know, Olive?" the older girl asked, as she drew the other's hand through her arm and walked on with her. "It hurt me to see you sitting talking in the house with a young man who kept his hat on his head."

"I could not ask him to take it off, Miss Bertha, though I wished that he would."

"There are ways of doing such things," was the reply; "and a girl should learn tactful ways of insisting on courteous treatment. Yesterday one of my cousins, a college boy, who had been smoking on the veranda, jumped up as I came out and said he would walk home with me. 'Shall we sit here, then, till you have finished your cigar?' I asked. He hastened to say that he thought I did not object to the smoke. 'I do not for myself,' I replied, 'but I knew that you would rather not be seen on the street with me while you were smoking.' He flung his cigar away instantly and with a red face told me that I was a brick. You see, he is really one himself."

At this point of the conversation three young men, walking abreast and deep in discussion and laughter, came toward the two ladies. Olive, to avoid a collision, would have stepped off the sidewalk, but her companion kept her beside her, coming almost to a standstill as the young men brushed against her.

"I beg your pardon," came the quick apology, and instantly three hats were in hand and a flush on the lads' faces.

"They knew better, only, as every woman they had passed had probably got off the sidewalk for them, they were oblivious to the necessity for attention. Half and half is the rule of the sidewalk, although men should give more to women, and the young of both sexes to their elders.

"To be sure, one can overdo any good thing," Miss Bertha talked on, affectionately pressing the girl's hand on her arm. "There was the case of the young man going to a party and discovering that his new trousers were six inches two long. He asked this mother to shorten them, but she was going to a club meeting and suggested he take them to his sister. However, his sister was busy with her own gown for the party and told him to take them to the maid. Unfortunately the maid was going out, so the lad cut off the extra length himself. Later in the afternoon his mother returned, remembered her son's request, found the trousers, cut off six inches and finished them neatly. Later the sister had some leisure, got the trousers and repeated the shortening. The maid, too, coming in early from her afternoon out, bethought her of Master Jack's predicament, found the trousers and kindly lent her scissors and needle to serve him."

Olive's laugh rang out so loud that Miss Bertha regretted her funny story in so public a place. "What a gorgeous sunset!" she exclaimed. "Those flying, fantastic clouds look as though a giant battle were on."

"Yes such a silent battle," the girl replied, instinctively lowering her voice.

Miss Bertha smiled.—Youth's Companion.

SERVICE.

He who carries about a face that says, "Can I serve you?" who maintains an aspect of sincere sympathy with everybody's pleasures and sorrows, triumphs or failures; who listens to the tedious tale that unloads some breaking heart; who shakes hands as if he meant, and who really does mean, "God bless you!" who gives hope without hope or wish for any return; who sees no alien behind ignorance or crime, color or race, but always a fellow creature, and limits his charity by no sect and no condition; who loses no chance of rendering a small but needed kindness, and counts no day happy in which he has not blessed some fellow creature with an unexpected and unclaimed service: who quenches wrath by his meekness and banishes irritation by his self-control; who takes the unpopular side when it is the just one; who defends the absent or protects the weak; who calls things by their proper names at the cost of his own reputation, when virtue and vice, right and wrong, are universally confounded; who is brave among social crowds and political poltroons—he is surely making himself the servant of humanity, and a chief among God's children and Christ's followers.—Anon.

THE GREAT TREASURY.

Christ's birth and life and death, his whole history in fact, resembles one of those treasure-chests which double locks secure: for as that iron safe yields its hoards of gold, silver and pearls, and precious stones to none but him who brings to each lock its own appropriate key, so the riches of divine truth, redeeming love and saving mercy are open only to such as come to Jesus, with a belief in his divinity on the one hand, and a belief in his humanity on the other—who behold in the child, whose birth was sung by angels, the son of Mary, and worship the only begotten, well beloved, and eternal Son of God.—Thomas Guthrie.

A TRUE PATRIOT

Hezekiah's Great Passover.

International Sunday School Lesson for Sunday, June 11, 1911. By Dr. and Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts.

Lesson Text—Chron. 30:13-17. Golden Text—I. Sam. 16:7: "Man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart."

(From the Christian Herald.)

Hezekiah the Good—so we must call him because of the power he was for good over the Hebrew nation. The fact that he was a good man rolls away the stone of bad heredity and proves that there is a chance in this world for those who have bad ancestors. The father of Hezekiah, King Ahaz, was one of the worst of men. It is said of him that he was a gross idolater, and even sacrificed his children to the gods (II Chron. 28:3). He remodeled the temple to fit it for idolatrous rites. He kept chariot horses dedicated to the sun. But there was a good mother in the case. Her name was Abijah. She was the daughter of the prophet Zechariah, who had been a faithful counselor of King Uzziah (II Chron. 26:5).

Cleansing the Nation.

God is the only way such a good man as King Hezekiah is to be accounted for. He may be called one of the boy kings of the world, for he was only twenty-five years old when he began to reign. One of his first acts was to have the temple cleansed by ordering the trash of idolatry to be carried out, and dumped into the valley of the Kidron. That included the so-called "gods" and all of the paraphernalia connected with their "worship." The brazen serpent which Moses had set up in the wilderness (Num. 21:9) was taken along with the rest, and from this we must infer that people had made a god out of it, something after the manner in which relics are considered "sacred" today, such as nails from the true cross exhibited at St. Peter's in Rome once a year; also the handkerchief of St. Veronica, which is said to bear the image of Christ, because she wiped the Lord's face with it when he was bearing the cross on the way to be crucified. Hezekiah called the brazen serpent "Nehushtan," meaning only a piece of brass (II Kings 18:4). In just sixteen days the accumulated idol filth of sixteen years was removed. And when the temple was swept and garnished, the lamps relighted, sacrifices to the Lord placed again upon the altars, then King Hezekiah sent messengers into every part of the land for the people to come to the temple to worship. Even the Israelites who had been led to worship the golden calves set up by Jeroboam were invited to come back to the worship of the true God. And many of them did come. Oh, that was a grand day, that first Passover in the time of King Hezekiah! It was a day worthy to be compared with the dedication of the temple by King Solomon. Not only did King Hezekiah have the idol filth removed from the temple, but from the city of Jerusalem, in which the temple was built; and in every part of his land, so that throughout his kingdom there was a revival of religion. His deeds have caused his name to be associated with King David and King Solomon as three of the greatest kings the world has ever known.

Well-Earned Prosperity.

Prosperity is not altogether modern, for it was had in the days of Hezekiah. The king's palace became a storehouse for gold, silver and jewels. Storehouses were built for the large increase of corn and wine and oil as the people cultivated their fields; their vineyards and their orchards; sheepfolds and housings were built for the flocks and herds, and among all of the people there was great increase of comfort and well being. "Happy is the people whose God is the Lord!" So great was their prosperity that ambassadors were sent by the princes of Babylon to inquire into the wonder that done in the land (II Chron. 32:31).

We shall hardly be content without reading the whole story of Hezekiah's good and prosperous reign, which extended over twenty-nine years, which was really prolonged fifteen years in answer to the king's prayer. (Read Isaiah, chapters 36, 37, 38 and 39).

Religion and Patriotism.

It is told in Denmark that their flag is 500 years old, and that it was dropped down out of heaven. We have no doubt at all that our own flag is a heaven-inspired banner. That starry corner looks very much like a bit of the starry heavens. Its red stripes are the language of valor and sacrifice., Its white stripes symbolize truth and hope. The blue signifies sincerity and justice.

"Who doth that flag defy,
We challenge as our foe;
Who will not for it die,
Out from us he must go!"
—Dr Bethune.

The story is told of a little five-year-old boy living in Washington who had heard a good deal of flag talk in his life, and who had gained a somewhat exaggerated idea of its protecting qualities. A new baby came into the home and the boy was put into a room by himself to sleep. "It's mighty lonesome in here," he called out to his mother. "Just remember the angels are near you, and are caring for you," the mother replied. There was silence for some time, and then a small white-gowned figure appeared at the door, and a tiny voice asked, "May I have grandpa's flag?" "Why, what for?" "Just let me stick the flag up at the head of my bed, and I will go right to sleep; for you know grandpa said the other night that under the flag the weakest are safe." He got the flag, and when his mother looked in upon him an hour later, he was fast asleep, with a little fat fist under his fat cheek, and in the other hand he held the flag raised over his head.

There are sometimes four flags to be seen flying on the capitol of the United States. They are large flags, sixteen feet long. Two of the flags, one at each end of the capitol, fly only when congress is in session; the other two are like perpetual fire on the altar of patriotism, for they fly every day in the year. A human heart may be an altar of patriotism, but the love of country is truest and best when that heart is stayed in God. King Hezekiah labored to lift his nation from their degradation, because he was a true friend and follower of God. Love of God was his strongest passion, and love of country was second to it; and when the two were united a mighty force was exerted, and a great nation was lifted out of sin into godliness. It is said to be the hope of every American boy some day to be president of the United States. Taking all the years together, very few boys can reach that goal, because there can be only one president at a time. After all, is that the highest ambition a boy can have? Is it not a personal ambition for fame? But there is room for every boy in this land to be a good citizen. The more good citizens, the better, and those who love their country will determine to help in making this "God's country."

Let them give a thought sometimes to King Hezekiah, and while they may not be able to command as he did that "filth" shall be removed, there will be opportunity for each and every one to lend a hand in making things purer and better wherever they live.

One day in wartime a ship was going into action and the captain was determined to win the victory; he was resolved not to give up. But he feared that when the sailors should get into the thickest of the fight, and should feel the shot and shell, some of them might be frightened into hauling down the flag in token of surrender. So he sent a man to nail the colors (flag) to the mast. Dr. Barnardo, remarking upon this incident, said: "We must all follow his example in our life battle, for all who love the Lord Jesus, young or old, have a battle to fight, and a fierce enemy to overcome. Satan does not like to see any one come to the Savior, and the moment we do come, he begins to fight. What then? Are we to be afraid? No, we must fight him in return, and conquer him, too. Sometimes he says: "Do not let any one know you have come to Jesus; they will laugh at you, and think you strange." That is like saying, "Pull your flag down." Shall you do as the enemy bids? No, never! Nail the colors to the mast, so that every one may see them, and no one be able to pull them down."

King Hezekiah, when he was about to inaugurate his plan for cleansing the temple, and the holy city, and the nation, called the priests and Levites (officers) together and said to them: "Now it is in mine heart to make a covenant with the Lord God of Israel," etc. He knew that he must take a stand with God and for God if he would be a good king and a help to his nation.

Teaching This Lesson to Children.

A teacher might begin by striking a match, and saying: "It does not give much light, does it? Why not? Because the room is light. But when we strike a match in a dark room, it gives much light. Sometimes when a city or a land is full of wickedness, we say it is 'dark,' and we speak of darkest Africa," etc.

Our lesson today is about darkest Judah, where the people worshiped idols instead of the true God; where they used God's beautiful golden house, the temple, not for the worship of God, but for idols. [It may be necessary to show pictures of idols.] The lesson story today is about one man who made that darkest Judah a good and happly place to live in. You thought it was wonderful that one little match could make so much light, but I will tell you now what one man did to make a great city and a great country good. I will write his name on the blackboard, for it is a long name, and a hard one for you to remember. A few moments' drill will enable all to speak the name "Hezekiah," and then let them be told that it is a name with a beautiful meaning: "The strength of God" (Jehovah). Let the teacher now tell the lesson story, using the main facts and the several stories which have gone before these hints.

MOTHER'S SUNDAY.

In one city home a very charming institution prevails. The whole household speaks of it as mother's Sunday. On that day the busy housekeeper in this particular home does no work of any kind.

The family consists of father, mother, four half-grown boys and girls and a little fellow of three sunny summers. The boys rise betimes on Sunday, make the fire, and in summer see that the porch is in perfect order. A dainty breakfast is prepared and served by the young daughters. Father dresses little brother, and at the meal waits upon him entirely.

One thing only is required of mother, that she dress in her prettiest, laciest, morning frock, and devote herself to looking her sweetest.

With the aid of the boys the table is soon cleared, the house put in perfect order, the dinner prepared as fast as possible before the young people are off to Sabbath school, and one of them always returns in time to care for the small boy, that both parents may enjoy their church service undisturbed. Dinner is served and the dishes are washed by the sons and daughters.

The busy, unselfish housemother is thus refreshed mentally and physically to cope with the many labors and cares of the week, when little help can be rendered by her student family. And who can gauge the amount of good done the young people by passing their Sunday in such an unselfish, beautiful way?—The Housekeeper.

THE BIBLE.

We were brought up among simple, unsuspecting believers. They told us that the Bible was all true. They called it "The Holy Bible," and they held it to be such. Some of us have not even yet given up our faith. We know that translation may have its faults, and that copyists may make blunders, and yet we hold to the whole Book—we still call it "The Holy Bible."

There is one test to which I can not but submit every creed, every religion, every book. What kind of manhood has it produced? What sort of men did the old Bible grow? What of their aspirations, their service, their sacrifice? They were grand men. Perhaps narrow-minded, perhaps austere, perhaps conservative, but they were honorable, determined, self-sacrificing men. They were men who put themselves to a great deal of trouble for others. They gave away much money. They counted not their lives dear unto them. They liberated slaves, they smashed iniquitous monopolies, they founded missionery societies, they dared fire and sword, pestilence and cruelty. They had immense and miracle-working faith. I believe in my heart that they were more self-sacrificing than many who laugh at their ignorance and condemn their narrowness. They believed in the liberal inspiration of the Bible, in the immortality of the soul, in eternal punishment, in the atoning death of the Lord Jesus; and they cried after, if finally they might attain, the holiness of God. They were not critics—they were great workers; not grammarians—but generous givers; not pedants—but unsparing in benevolence and sacrifice.

I judge every religion by the men it makes, and so judged, the Bible has no need to be ashamed of its stalwarts and its heroes. Shall I offend scholars and critics, grammarians and pedants, if I frankly say that merely as such they have next to nothing to do with the Bible? That the Bible has little or nothing to say to them in their academical capacity? The Bible seeks and finds the heart, talks to the spirit when in the deepest humility, goes out after the soul in its penitence and mortal hunger. When the reader is least a grammarian, he may be nearest the spirit of the book. "Thus saith the high and lofty one that inhabiteth eternity, to this man I will look, to the man that is of a humble and contrite heart, and that trembleth at my word."—Joseph Parker.

THE BIBLE AND ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES

The specious claim is repeatedly put forth by those trafficking in intoxicating liquors and their protagonists that the Bible, especially Jesus, is favorable to the beverage use of alcoholic liquors. In reference to this question, not a little confusion and much misapprehension exist. What are the facts?

In the outstart, it is important to observe that the Bible uniformly condemns drunkenness and the excessive use of alcoholic beverages. There are but two classes of beverages, properly speaking, referred to in the Scriptures—wine and strong drink. The latter was uniformly intoxicating and its use is uniformly condemned. Malt and distilled liquors were unknown. The medicinal use of wine is recognized as a stimulant in cases of exhaustion. (Prov. 31:6), debility and gastric disturbances (I Tim. 5:23), and as a stimulant and antiseptic in the treatment of wounds (Luke 10:34). The question as to the therapeutic value of alcohol is not here raised, as it is not germane to the present purpose. It may be remarked, however, in passing, that it is an open one with advanced thought against its use. Thus the question, reduced to its lowest terms, resolves itself into: What is the attitude of the Bible in reference to the moderate use of wine as a beverage?

The word "wine" has a much greater latitude of meaning in the Scriptures than with us. It is there used to designate the juice of the grape in all its phases, even before expressed from the fruit, much as we use the word "cider." Bible wines were, generally speaking, unintoxicating. There are but three instances on record of intoxication from its use—Noah (Gen. 9:21), Lot Gen. 19:35), and Nabal (I Sam. 25:36). The bevearge use of wine is apparently commended but in one passage (Eccl. 9:7), where the meaning is obscure and the "wine" referred to was in all probability nonalcoholic. The only safe canon of Scripture interpretation, one laid down by the Bible itself, is to compare scripture with scripture. Rightly viewed, the Bible is not a conglomerate of incoherent aphorisms. It is a cyclopedia of spiritual truth necessary for the salvation of men, self-consistent and harmonious throughout. Only so much other data is introduced as is pertinent to this one great purpose. The detaching of scripture from its connection, emphasizing a part to the neglect of the whole, coupled with private interpretation, has been the prolific source of divergence in theological opinion. This is well illustrated in the multiplicity of Christian sects, all basing their teaching on the Word of God. The various verses and chapters stand related to each other as a cluster of incandescent lights, each illuminating what is dark in the others.

Over against the admittedly ambiguous statement in Ecclesiastes 9:7 there are a number of scripture passages about the meaning of which there is no doubt (Prov. 20:1, 23:31, 31-41). These clearly condemn the beverage use of wine. One passage even goes so far as to forbid looking on wine when fermentation has begun in it. These cumulative, unambiguous, positive scriptures forbid any interpretation of Ecclesiastes 9:7, favoring alcoholic beverages. Summing up, the Bible condemns drunkenness. It condemns the beverage use of strong drink and all alcoholic wines. On the other hand, in the case of the Rechabites and elsewhere, it commends total abstinence. It calls unintoxicating wine a "blessing" (Isa. 65:8), and intoxicating wine a "curse" (Prov. 23:29-34).

But what about the attitude of Jesus to the beverage use of alcoholic liquors? It is vigorously asserted by the liquor interests that Jesus in his first miracle at Cana of Galilee put his wise on such use of intoxicants. It is claimed by liquor advocates that this wine was intoxicating and that Jesus, in providing it, put his seal of approval on the beverage use of such liquors. The saloonists have never been widely known as trustworthy exegetes of Scripture. In the interpretation they would put upon the wine at Cana their general reputation as exegetes seems fully sustained. Grave and insurmountable obstacles, however, lie in the way of this free and easy, catch-at-a-straw exegesis.

It makes Jesus inconsistent. In his public addresses he preached self-denial and condemned drunkenness (Luke 12:45, 21:34.) We know that all tippling is incipient and partial drunkenness. Jesus knew it. If the wine he made at Cana was alcoholic, by his own act in making it he contributed to human dereliction contradicted his own precepts, and stands before the world self-convicted of inconsistency.

2. It is essentialy antagonistic to the fundamental character of his kingdom. His kingdom is spiritual, not carnal, good and for good and opposed to all evil. Tippling is an evil. Its evil nature may not at first appear. Some moral acts like seeds, are difficult to distinguish in their undeveloped state. "By their fruits ye shall know them," Jesus says. What are the fruits of tippling? Drunkenness, debauchery, immorality, blasted lives, disease, misery, poverty and shame. The fruit is bad, unquestionably bad. The irresistible conclusion must be drawn that tippling, per se, is an evil. There is and can be no harmless drinking of alcohol. Thistle burs do not grow on fig trees, but on thistle stems and roots.

3. It is out of harmony with Christ's mission to the world. He came to save men, not to debauch and destroy them. He was named "Jesus" because he should save his people from their sins—not lead them into sin.

4. It makes him a violator of Scripture. The Bible pronounces a "woe upon him that giveth his neighbor drink," and commands us not to "look upon the wine when it is red." Christ knew these Old Testament scriptures. He expressly declared his mission was not to destroy the law, but to fulfill it. He came not to destroy these commands against the beverage use of intoxicating liquors, but to fulfill them.

5. It makes him lead men into temptation: Jesus taught his disciples to pray the Father: "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil." It is unthinkable that Christ would lead men into temptation and deliver them to evil. Yet this liquor exegesis requires us to believe that he did both.

6. It contradicts the observed facts of his life. He not only preached, but practiced self-denial. His disciples were amazed at his abstemiousness which extended oft even to necessary food. There is not a scintilla of evidence that he ever made beverage use of intoxicating wine. The accusing epithet, cast upon him by his enemies, of being a "wine bibber" was as false as that of his working by the power of "the prince of devils." He was evidently not among the wine drinkers at the Cana marriage. Otherwise it would not have been necessary for his mother to have apprised him of the exhausted supply of wine. In the supreme agonies of the cross, when the medicinal properties of wine might have benefited him, he refused to drink it.

Thus this liquor interpretation brands the Son of God as an inconsistent antagonist to the spirit of his own kingdom, a violator of the law of God, and makes him lead men into temptation and a minister of evil. It is inconceivable that the Author of the Sermon on the Mount is such a bundle of inconsistencies and hypocrisies, veritable Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, as this interpretation requires him to be. There is but one conclusion that can be logically drawn as to the attitude of the Bible taken as a whole, in reference to the beverage use of intoxicating liquors, and that is one of unqualified condemnation.

It is well to remember that much of the Bible is history and is not exemplary in character. It paints men as they are that we may imitate their virtues and avoid their vices. We have not more right to follow the example of Noah in drinking wine than in building the ark. The recorded instances of wine drinking in the Scriptures are not exemplary and cannot be so.—Robert B. Patton, D. D., in the United Presbyterian.

Bob Burdette on Beer.

"Bob Burdette" never says a dull thing, and his unique way of stating an old truth makes it shine with a new light. Even a subject as well worn as the temperance cause takes on a new sparkle when "Bob"—excuse us, the Rev. Dr. Robert J. Burdette—tackles it. Here he pays his compliments to beer:

"My dear boy, men have fought, bled and died, but not for beer.

"Arnold Winkelried did not throw himself upon the Austrian spears because he was ordered to close his saloon at 9 o'clock.

"William Tell did not hide his arrow under his vest to kill the tyrant because the edict had gone forth that the free-born Switzer should not drink a keg of beer every Sunday.

"Freedom did not shriek as Kosciusko fell over a whisky barrel.

"Warren did not die that beer might flow as the brooks murmur seven days a week.

"Even the battle of Brandywine was not fought that whisky might be free.

"No clause in the Declaration of Independence declares that a Sunday concert garden, with five brass horns and one hundred kegs of beer, is the inalienable right of a free people and the cornerstone of good government.

"Tea—mild, harmless, innocent tea, the much-sneered-at temperance beverage, the feeble drink of effeminate men and good old women—tea holds a higher place, it fills a brighter, more glorious page, and is a grander figure in the history of this United States than beer.

"Men liked tea, my boy, but they hurled it into the sea in the name of liberty, and they died rather than drink it until they made it free. It seems to be worth fighting for, and the best men in the world fought for it.

"The history of the United States is incomplete with tea left out. As well might the historian omit Faneuil hall and Bunker Hill as tea. But there is no story of heroism or patriotism with rum for its hero.

"The battles of this world, my son, have been fought for grander things than free whisky. The heroes who fall in the struggles for rum fall shot in the neck, and their martyrdom is clouded by the haunting phantoms of the jimjams.

"Whisky makes men fight, it is true, but they usually fight other drunken men. The champion of beer does not stand in the temple of fame; he stands in the police court. Honor never has the delirium tremens. Glory does not wear a red nose, and Fame blows a horn, but never takes one."—Exchange.

HEALTHY MOTHERS

Women who bear children and remain healthy are those who prepare their systems in advance of baby's coming. Unless the mother aids nature in its pre-natal work the crisis finds her system unequal to the demands made upon it, and she is often left with weakened health or chronic ailments. No remedy is so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend, and no expectant mother should fail to use it. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant and elastic those fibres and muscles which nature is expanding, prevents numbness of limbs, and soothes the inflammation of breast glands. The system being thus prepared by Mother's Friend dispels the fear that the crisis may not be safely met. Mother's Friend assures a speedy and complete recovery for the mother, and she is left a healthy woman to enjoy the rearing of her child. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. Write for our free book for expectant mothers which contains much valuable information, and many suggestions of a helpful nature.

My kidney action was too frequent, especially at night, and I lost much sleep, which made me very nervous and restless. I was also troubled with dizzy spells, and the pain over my kidneys caused me intense misery at times. ## HIS PLAN CLEVER AND SIMPLE.

Indianapolis Floorwalker Had Robbed His Firm of Hundreds.

Indianapolis, June 3.—By padding "refund" checks, Elmer Stodgell, 24 years old, floorwalker for one of the large department stores of this city, stole between $500 and $600 in a few months, according to his statement to the police after he had been arrested charged with grand larceny here.

When a customer would return goods in his department, Stodgell would take the slip upon which was marked the amount of money to be refunded, raise the figures, cash the slip at the cashier's desk, return to the customer the amount due and retain the balance. On his last transaction he raised a check for $1.50, the selling price of a pair of gloves returned, to $11.50 and kept $10. "I'm guilty and I don't know why I did it," he said in his cell last night. "I shall throw myself on the mercy of the court." Stodgell's family lives at Kokomo.

The "PEERLESS" WHITE ENAMEL is applied upon galvanized steel in several coats, and baked at varying degrees of temperature for each coating. This produces a flinty, glossed surface, which is absolutely odorless, thoroughly sanitary, and will not peel nor flake.

WHO WANTS SPEED?

Most riders want it: few need it. What they do need is power and efficiency. The superior speed of the Indian and R.-S. Motorcycles is the result of superior power and efficiency.

But you don't have to go fast. Just gear that chain drive Indian or R.-S. down to touring speed and you have so much more power for a long pull in sand or up hill.

That's where the Indian or R.-S. excels all others.

They have so much power you can gear it up or down. Try that on the so-called touring machines and they quit.

THE MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Ill., June 3.—Worse reports about Hessian fly damage sent the wheat market soaring today. Dispatches were at hand from northern Indiana asserting that 20 to 25 per cent of the crop had been injured. Bullish sentiment was increased by news of hot, dry weather in the southwest and because of similar conditions prevailing in Russia and Romania. According to one authority, two-thirds of the wheat acreage in the Hessian fly section of northern Indiana is practically worthless. The opening was the same as last night to ½c up. July started at 91⅝c to 91⅞c, a gain of ¼c to ¾c and rose to 92½@92⅝c.

There was good buying of corn on account of the strength of wheat and as a result of prospects of a smaller movement from the farms. Offerings were scarcely. July opened ¼c to ⅝c higher at 53⅞@54c to 54⅛c and advanced to 54⅝c.

A big demand for oats went largely unsatisfied. Longs who sold out yesterday were active in trying to reinstate holdings, the principal reason being the wheat boom. July started unchanged to ⅜@½c up at 36¼c to 36½c, touched 36@36⅜c and then climbed to 36⅞c.

Provisions, though neglected, were steady. First sales were at last night's level with September lard at $8.15 and January ribs, $7.07½. Pork received no attention whatever.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, June 3.—Recent gains in the stock market were preserved and in some cases extended in the opening transactions today. The Hill stocks made a further advance, Northern Pacific gaining 1¾. Bethlehem Steel moved up 6 point. Gains elsewhere were confined to small fractions.

Confidence in the stability of general conditions was reflected in the early dealings in the stock market. The specialties which ordinarily figure conspicuously in speculative movements were relegated to the back ground, the demand being keenest for representative and middle class railroad stocks. With cheerful prospects for satisfactory crops and resulting large earnings, together with the abundance of money for commercial and banking uses, pool leaders took hold of various issues and bid them up sharply. Union Pacific, Reading and St. Paul were all notable factors in the rise. A block of a million dollars Atchison convertible fours of 1960 sold at 105 with subsequent sales at 105⅝.

The market closed active and strong. Prices fell from substantial fractions to a point in the last hour under the weight of realizing sales but the undertone continued distinctly firm. Of all the active issues American Telephone and Canadian Pacific alone displayed heaviness.

My first is in work, but not in toil;
My second is in arrow, but not in foil;
My third is in lie, but not in truth;
My fourth is in nerve, but not in tooth;
My fifth is in tune, but not in song;
My sixth is in strong, but not in long;

DANDRUFF, FALLING HAIR, ITCHING SCALP QUICKLY STOPPED

A Harmless, Old-Fashioned Remedy, Brings Back the Color to Gray Hair.

How many old-fashioned remedies are being used, which goes to show that it is hard to improve some of our grandmothers' old-time, tried remedies. For instance, for keeping the hair dark, soft and glossy nothing equals our grandmothers' "sage tea." Although, by the addition of sulphur and other ingredients, this old-fashioned brew has been made more effective as a scalp tonic and color restorer.

Nowadays, when our hair comes out or gets faded or gray, instead of going to the garden or garret for herbs and making the "tea" ourselves, we simply go to the nearest drug store and ask for a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy.

Druggists are authorized to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists.

IMMENSE line to choose from; sure to please you. The lowest prices, as you can buy at retail, of the only wholesale house in Fort Wayne. We can sell you wall paper, at the same price the retailer has to pay for it, as it is a side issue, in one corner of most stores, while we sell nothing but wall paper, in a store building 20 by 110 feet, 4 stories and basement. The people of Fort Wayne have been making a beaten path to our door for the last 34 years, Why? Because we sold better wall paper than others at the same price, or, the same quality at a lower price. # NOW SKYSCRAPERS ARE TO REALLY SHOOT UP

Powerful Building Interests Said to Have Secured Control of a Cement Gun Project That Promises to Revolutionize Present Methods.

New York, June 3.—Not content with putting up forty-story steel structures in six months' time, a new inventor has appeared in the field, with big capital behind him, who actually proposes to shoot walls into place with a rapid fire gun.

The new invention will accomplish as much in a single day as the united efforts of twenty-four men could create under old methods. The ancient cement mixer is to give place to the cement gun.

No procession of men wheeling heavily laden barrows will clog progress where the cement gun is utilized. Instead, liquid cement is actually shot into place by means of compressed air.

Thomas A. Edison's prediction that cement was the means by which building construction would be revolutionized seems in a fair way to be realized. He planned building by filling giant moulds. The inventor of the cement gun seems to have fairly outdone Edison himself.

First, there is a long tube of sufficient textile strength to withstand the pressure of both compressed air and water. This is the gun barrel. There is a valve just forward of the breech of the gun and another near the muzzle. Compressed air is admitted through the first and water through the second.

At about the point of the vent in the ordinary breech-loading cannon a tube-like connection is established with a hopper, a wide-angled V-shaped affair.

Dry Cement and sand are thrown into this hopper by two men, and here, aside from valve manipulation and directing the cement stream, the human element feature of cement gun operation ends.

The hopper vibrates constantly, mixing its contents thoroughly before it drops down through the tube connection. Once in the gun barrel, the mixture is about forward by the compressed air fed through the valve.

At the muzzle a stream of water is encountered that does not check velocity, but mixes with the sand and cement, the whole driving out the gun end with sufficient force to carry it to the desired point.

The incorporation of the Cement Appliances company was the first inkling the public had of such an invention. It is understood the new company is controlled by powerful building interests operating in the large cities of the United States.

LIGHTNING KILLS FEW.

In 1906 lightning killed only 169 people in this whole country. One's chances of death by lightning are less than two in a million. The chance of death from liver, kidney or stomach trouble is vastly greater, but not if Electric Bitters be used, as Robert Madsen, of West Burlington, Ia., proved. Four doctors gave him up after eight months of suffering from virulent liver trouble and yellow jaundice. He was then completely cured by Electric Bitters. They're the best stomach, liver, nerve and kidney remedy and blood purifier on earth. Only 50c at all druggists.

JEWS OPPOSING AN ODIOUS LAW

Start Campaign Against a Tradition in the Army of Prussia.

THE BERLIN LETTER

(Associated Press Correspondence.)

Berlin, May 26.—German Jewish organizations have undertaken a campaign against the unwritten military law, prohibiting Jews from becoming officers in the Prussian army. A resolution, unanimously adopted by two leading Jewish organizations, the Union of German Jews and the Central Association of German Citizens of Jewish Faith, at a meeting at Frankfort-on-Main, reads:

"Contrary to the custom of all other civilized states, soldiers of the Jewish faith in the Prussian army are at a disadvantage, in the matter of promotion, as compared to Christians and the Christian sons of Jewish parents. The assembly protests against this condition as unconstitutional and illegal, and expresses the hope that the competent authorities will succeed in abolishing this shameful and oppressive injustice and in bringing about the fulfillment of the law."

Though considerable inroads already have been made on the traditional view, which regarded the higher posts in the army and the commissions in the better regiments as the prerogative of the German nobility, immediate favorable action on the resolution above set forth is not regarded probable.

The Berlin Elevated Railways Co. has joined with the Consolidated Berlin Street railways and the prefect of police in the warfare against the projecting hatpin, posting in cars an order that women passengers with long hatpins must place a protective guard over the end of the projecting pins. In spite, however, of the orders and the warnings of the supposedly all-powerful prefect of police that women endangering the safety of others by long hatpins would render themselves subject to arrest, no abatement of the menace can be noticed and accidents from this source are constantly reported.

A dangerous but successful balloon landing is reported from Altoona, where the aeronaut, Wilson, fearing that his balloon would be driven by an adverse wind into the River Elbe, which is very broad at Altoona, elected to come down in the middle of the city. He pulled the ripcord when the balloon was above the city fish market, coming down successfully and safely amid the fish dealers in the uncovered square.

The equestrians who exercise early every morning on the riding paths of the Tiergarten, Berlin's central park, are to have an additional attraction in the shape of military music provided for them by order of the emperor, who himself, when in Berlin, takes an early morning gallop there every fine day. A band from one of the regiments of the guard is to be stationed in future at the Hippodrome, a circular open space surrounded by a tanbark path, where a dozen riding paths emerge from all directions.

Here every morning gather hundreds of officers of the general staff, anxious to preserve their waistline while detailed for office work in the capital, together with active retired officials taking their "constitutional," ladies with their attendant grooms, and many professional men, such as bankers, lawyers, doctors and actors, who indulge in this form of exercise in order to counteract the effects of their sedentary occupations. The emperor is usually accompanied by a considerable number of attendants, including his principal aide-de-camp, the chief of the royal stables, two or three personal orderly officers, a bodyguard of several gendarmes and a number of grooms.

A scheme of compulsory physical training for the municipal officials of Schoeneberg has just been introduced by Herr Dominicus, the newly appointed lord mayor of the beautiful western suburb of Berlin, in order to counteract the evil effects of their long hours of desk work. All the younger officials are granted an hour's leave on one day every week, during which they are put through a course of athletic exercise in the playground of one of the city schools, under the direction of the school's gymnastic instructor. Every official is expected to participate in the training if the medical officer reports him physically fit to undergo the exertion, and regular attendance is compulsory.

Herr Dominicus, who was formerly in charge of the evening continuation school in Strassburg, affected by similar scheme a vast amount of improvement in the health of the scholars. He first started gymnastic classes for the tailors' apprentices, who, he considered, by reason of the close confinement of their occupation, stood most in need of physical training, with such excellent results that the master shoemakers came and requested him to do the same for their young workers. Before he left Strassburg Herr Dominicus had the satisfaction of seeing physical instruction made compulsory for the scholars of all the continuation schools in the city, which all boys are compelled to attend until their eighteenth year, and he has already secured its partial introduction in the Schoeneberg continuation schools.

The perennial struggle between Germans and Poles for the ownership of the soil in the eastern provinces of Prussia finds a striking illustration in the fact, just made public, that about 42,500 acres of land in the provinces of Posen, East and West Prussia, and Silesia have passed from German into Polish hands within a year. This occurs twenty-five years after the Prussian government inaugurated its great system of colonizing Germans in the Polish provinces, a policy that has cost something like $90,000,000.

The efforts of the government have been partly counteracted by Polish activity in buying land. There are special Polish banks for assisting Poles in acquiring parcels of land, and their work has been so effective that for some years most of the land bought by the Prussian settlement commission for dividing up among German peasants has been acquired from Germans themselves. In order to enable the commission to carry forward its settlement plans in a systematic way and extend the borders of German settlements already established, the diet or Prussian legislature, passed in 1908 a law permitting the commission to dispossess Polish landholders, within certain limits, under the law of eminent domain. This law, however, has never been enforced. The continued acquisition of German lands by Poles has called forth a strong demand that it be put into operation at once.

SAVED HIS WIFE'S LIFE.

"My wife would have been in her grave today," writes O. H. Brown, of Muscadine, Ala., "if it had not been for Dr. King's New Discovery. She was down in her bed, not able to get up without help.
